FIRE RULES TO GOVERN BOARDS

Legal Fight Predicted on Amended Ordinance by City Council

Immediately following passage of the amended ordinance yesterday afternoon, Councilman Sam Davis made a motion instructing the city attorney, Ray L. Morrow, to draw an ordinance requiring that billboards erected within the fire districts be made to comply with the building regulations covering such districts. The motion was seconded by Mayor Spencer Robinson and was passed by unanimous vote of the four councilmen present. Councilman S. S. Gilhuly was absent at the time.

Councilman Davis then made a motion instructing the city attorney to draw an ordinance restricting billboards to industrial districts but the motion was not seconded, on advice of Mr. Morrow that such an ordinance could not be enforced if passed. The vote passing the billboard ordinance came shortly after the council reconvened at 1:30 o'clock, after an hour's recess. Prior to its passage, an amendment offered by Councilman C. E. Kimlin, providing for a license of $100 a year for a company, in place of the tax of 25 cents per square foot, failed to pass by a vote of three to two, Councilman Kimlin and Gilhuly casting the "yes" votes.

Plan Legal Fight
Councilman Gilhuly explained his "yes" vote on the amendment and "no" vote on the ordinance by stating: "I am not in favor of passing an ordinance that cannot be enforced."

Councilman Kimlin said: "You will spend some good money of the taxpayers of Glendale fighting the billboard people on that ordinance."

Following passage of the ordinance, Wayne Alles, special representative of Foster & Kleiser, billboard advertisers, made a statement to the council in which he declared the ordinance unreasonable and illegal, and intimated that legal efforts will be made to set it aside.

Effective in Month
The ordinance as passed, and which will become effective in thirty days, places a tax of 25 cents per square foot on every billboard erected within the city limits, and in addition takes the supervision of billboards out of the hands of the City Planning commission and places it in the hands of the City Council, by outlining the procedure as follows: That an application for a permit to erect a billboard be first filed with the city clerk, then transmitted to the building superintendent for report, then to the City Planning commission for recommendation to the City Council, which latter body is given the sole power to grant or deny the application.

The council yesterday afternoon instructed the city engineer to draw up plans for sewer laterals within the city of Glendale. E. B. Odell was granted a permit to conduct a public dance at Hahn's auditorium, 109-A North Brand boulevard. A resolution was adopted authorizing Mayor Spencer Robinson to execute an agreement, dated December 2, between the city of Glendale and the Los Angeles county flood control district, granting Glendale an easement to lay a 48-inch sewer pipe beneath the official flood control channel of the Los Angeles river.

Will Audit Books
A resolution was adopted authorizing Mayor Robinson to execute an agreement, dated December 2, between the city of Glendale and the firm of Marwick-Mitchell, of Los Angeles, employing them to audit the city books during the fiscal year of 1924-25, at a charge of $700. A resolution was adopted awarding to A. C. Rice the contract for installation of Union Metal type ornamental street lights on Los Feliz road. The city attorney was instructed to prepare an amendment to the street ordinance, barring heavy traffic on Canada boulevard from Verdugo road to Giorietta avenue. An ordinance was passed abandoning proceedings for the opening and widening of Ruberta avenue. The hearing on the assessment for the improvement of Broadway with ornamental street lights was continued until 10 o'clock Thursday morning, December 4.

Mr. Cheesman stated that the official number of the troop would be 17. Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Evans.

FROM EAGLE ROCK

EAGLE ROCK, Dec. 3.—A number of transfers have recently been made from the Lincoln Heights division of the Los Angeles police department to the Eagle Rock division, announces Captain J. J. Mart. Among them is Officer W. J. Bracey, who was on duty in this section shortly after Los Angeles took over the local police department, following Eagle Rock's annexation to Los Angeles. B. W. Thomason, plain clothes detail, who has many friends here, is also returning. With W. E. Waters he will continue on plain clothes duty in this district, making criminal investigations. Sergeant J. W. Church has been transferred to the local department. Sergeant Church was formerly on "speed" duty. F. W. Allen who has been in plain clothes, will take up beat duty. W. J. Mansfield has been transferred to Lincoln Heights. Acting Sergeant Level has been assigned to "Jitney Patrol" duty.

The local department is now operating under one acting lieutenant and four sergeants, under the supervision of Captain Mart, who believes that these transfers will so strengthen his division as to put a stop to the series of petty thefts and hold-ups that have lately terrorized the district.

The recent bazaar given by the women of St. Dominic's parish was a most enjoyable and successful affair, it is reported. Dinner was served to several hundred people and the sale of many beautiful articles was attended with great enthusiasm. The several home-made quilts were won by residents of Eagle Rock, the bride doll by Miss Elizabeth Carey, the other elaborate and expensively gowned bisque dolls by Miss Mary Burdland and a visiting guest of Miss Miriam Kleine, of Los Angeles. Mrs. Howard was the lucky winner of the exquisite hand-embroidered bed spread, and the hope chest, most of all, went to Miss Helen Prell of Los Angeles.

The Women's guild of the St. St. Barnabas Episcopal church met for an all-day session at the rectory today, to arrange final details for the bazaar to be held Saturday, December 6.

NEW RULINGS IN INCOME TAX PAY

Internal Revenue Collector Goodcell Explains Three Important Facts

Three important income tax rulings were received today by Collector of Internal Revenue Rex B. Goodcell on the eve of the filing of returns for income earned for the year 1924.

The bureau holds that an amount expended for subscription advisory services, which had a useful life of less than one year, by a taxpayer who for seven months of a year devoted practically his entire time to trading on the stock market, is an allowable deduction from gross income.

It is held that capital losses cannot be excluded in computing net income for the purpose of determining the amount of charitable contribution deductions. An advisory trust, created by will, to be operated solely for charitable and educational purposes, is not exempt from income taxation, under the Revenue Acts of 1918, 1921 and 1924. Under the 1924 act, but not under prior acts, such a trust may deduct income that is to be used exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary and educational purposes.

MONTROSE NOTES

MONTROSE, Dec. 3.—"This is one of the happiest times of my life, when I can greet you here on this occasion as fellow boosters and friends of Montrose Chamber of Commerce," said James L. Brown, president, in opening the booster meeting last night. "We must realize that the tremendous growth this valley is making calls for the best of co-operative spirit. We must work with the other organizations of the valley for the upbuilding of the whole. That is the reason of this meeting here tonight, to help us get acquainted one with another, to know what the chamber is doing and to participate in the work laid out for the coming year as members of the organization."

"Three years ago the Montrose Chamber of Commerce was organized. Now we have come to the place where we need to infuse new blood into the organization to help in the forward movement of the future. Don't let the other fellow do it all, get together and help."

Mr. Brown asked those present who were not members to join. A short business meeting was conducted. No new business was taken up, but reports from the attending members were given. The first called on to report was the road committee in charge of A. E. Sullivan, W. F. Fowler and Frank B. Turner. Mr. Sullivan gave a detailed report of the visit of the committee to the supervisor's office.

Work on straightening out the bad spots in Honolulu avenue was promised but the county would not at this time resurface Honolulu avenue with its present roadbed, he said. The work will have to be done by the property owners who will have some time to pay for the work. However, the county is going ahead and iron out the rough spots on this road for the time being, also will drag and improve the dirt streets during the winter.

Fire, water and light committee, with C. L. Mead as chairman, reported that the 350-gallon pumper had arrived but as there was no house to place it in was still in Los Angeles, however, efforts were being made to have some public spirited citizen build a garage and quarters for the fireman, the rental to be about $50 per month. Fifteen hydrants are here ready for installation and will be placed at once. The situation, according to Mr. Mead, is in splendid condition there being a plentiful supply on hand. In regard to lighting the streets the signatures of twenty-five persons are needed, then the county will furnish maps of the old lighting district, the residents designating which streets they wish lighted.

Parks, so needed in any growing town, are receiving careful attention from the Montrose Chamber of Commerce. Captain Pamela and F. Clark taking care of this problem. Mr. Clark stated that the small park had only lost one small tree out of the county's donation due to the care Captain Pamela had given them. Two more parks are being prepared, the county agreeing to supply the new trees.

Glendale was especially neighborly last night, sending a representation to the gathering, Harry James, loaned through the courtesy of the Brunswick, Balke, Colender Co., lived up to the program with his clever monologues. Mr. James was recalled several times and finally by request gave his original "Englishman At the Ball Game."

Theo Belanger, chairman of the public safety commission, reported the illuminated signals will be placed at three of the most dangerous crossings in the valley. Lester Thompson, of the special committee, stated the Auto club had made a survey of the district and was waiting until Rossmoyne people had completed their roads, when signs indicating the way to Montrose would be placed in various strategic points.

In introducing Harry N. Fowler of Verdugo City, Mr. Brown called him one of the farseeing men of the valley who had the power to carry on what was for the best for the district. In replying, Mr. Fowler said, "I am happy to be with you and help celebrate this booster affair with you. We will co-operate with you in everything you want us in."

Miss Marie Walsh, popular teacher of expression, gave several readings and piano solos. A. B. Buchanan, realtor, who is chairman of the telephone committee, gave his report. T. A. Blanford gave a short talk on the brick campaign of the local post of the American Legion.

W. H. Reeves, former city manager of Glendale, told of the growth of Pasadena, taking twenty years to arrive at the point where it is today and compared it with the growth of Glendale which has been achieved in the past few years. Mr. Reeves predicted similar growth for this section.

The Turner sisters, dancers, also from Glendale, entertained with an Argentine tango. J. C. Shearer, the man who handles Glendale's money, gave a detailed history of this entire section going back as far as 1880 when Dr. Briggs first came to the valley, when land in Glendale could be bought for $50 per acre. He regretted that in growing the town had not made provision for parks. Frederick Plaisted, former governor of Maine told of his coming to California and being persuaded by Mark S. Collins to buy fifteen acres here where he expected to live his days out.

Dinner was served to 125 persons. Arctic mosquitoes are very large.

GEORGE LYONS, DR. T. C. YOUNG ON C. OF C. BOARD

REPORTS ON COMMUNITY SERVICE

A. L. Baird, Retiring From Presidency, Tells of Year's Activities

The second annual report of Glendale Community Service was read to members of the executive board assembled at the annual meeting yesterday. It follows: Glendale Community Service closes its second year with evidence of having given great service through activities arranged for the leisure time of the people of Glendale. Without a Community Center plant, with limited funds, but with city, school and club facilities as a base of operation, it has proven to be an organizing force and not an institution.

The program has been carried on by scores of volunteers, under the direction of the city superintendent of recreation. The City Council and park commission, by providing this leadership, have brought into the service of the community volunteer guidance and advice that could not be bought at any price. The urge of Community Service in its larger meaning has joined all these forces, as shown in this annual report of activities.

Christmas—The second community Christmas celebration was arranged last year by Community Service, a little different plan than used formerly having been worked out. Children from all over the

JEFFERSONS BACK FROM EUROPE

Glad to See Glendale After Experiencing Miserable Weather on Trip

"Back in Glendale, and I'm thankful for it for a number of reasons. Mainly because there isn't a spot in Europe where it isn't raining and as cold as blazes, whereas here we found the sun shining like on a day in mid-summer upon our return. Then we arrived just in time for the Glendale cat show, and we were very glad for that."

These were the words of W. T. Jefferson, well known south side real estate operator who, with his wife, has just returned from a ten weeks' stay in Europe and the British Isles. A collection of twenty paintings by Tintoretto, which he purchased from an old Italian villa near Venice, and several fine specimens of primitive Italian furniture were brought back by Mr. Jefferson and will in the future share his affection and attention with "Gilluly Guthrie Campbell Jefferson," the Jefferson office cat.

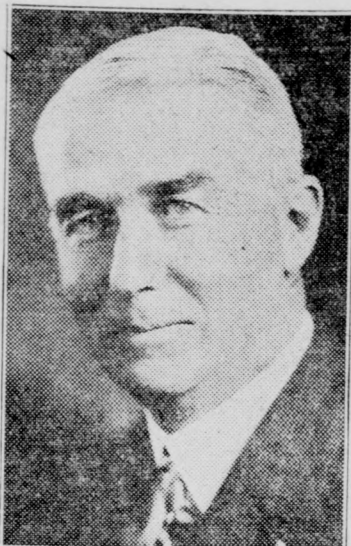

By an oversight on the part of "hired hands," Gilluly Guthrie Campbell Jefferson was not entered in the cat show this year, but his owner promises to display him in the next show without fail. Many will remember "Gill" who

DELOS H. SMITH ELECTED ORGANIZATION PRESIDENT

Make Plans for Industrial Survey of City and 'Trade in Glendale' Campaign; Many Other Matters Come Up for Action

Delos H. Smith, manager of the Brand boulevard branch of the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings bank, was elected president of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce by unanimous decision of the board of directors last night. Mr. Smith served as first vice-president of the chamber during the past year. George B. Karr was elected first vice-president for 1925, Frank L. Fox, second vice-president, and W. G. Lauderdale, treasurer.

George Lyons and Dr. T. C. Young were made appointive members of the board of directors. They, along with the six holdover members and the six elected a week ago, will compose the board during the coming year.

The complete list of directors follows: D. H. Smith, George B. Karr, Frank L. Fox, W. G. Lauderdale, Fred Deal, Lyman P. Clark, C. W. Ingledue, Harry G. MacBain, Arthur Campbell, T. D. Watson, Dr. T. C. Young, W. L. Truitt, Dan Kelly and George Lyons.

Following the appointment of the two additional directors and the election of officers, the new board got down to business by taking the first steps in getting an industrial survey for the city of Glendale, thus looking to the further industrial development of the San Fernando road district, and inaugurated a "trade in Glendale" campaign which will be carried on throughout the coming year.

Committee in Charge
 A committee composed of directors Fox, MacBain and Watson was appointed to take the initial steps toward a complete industrial survey for the Glendale district. This committee will confer with several experts and members of the industrial committee of the chamber and report at the meeting one week from last night.

Secretary Howard I. Wood took up the matter of Glendale industries before the board of directors last night. He declared that, although the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and other bodies had promised aid to Glendale in securing industrial plants, they were willing to do nothing until a complete survey had been made here. He urged the necessity of such a survey, pointing out that the major part of the preliminary work has already been done through the Burbank and Los Angeles surveys, and that Glendale can profit greatly by using these two documents. The cost of the survey will be small, he declared.

Proper Development
 Secretary Wood stressed the necessity of gaining control of Glendale's available industrial lands in order to properly regulate their development. He pointed to the danger of developing only narrow strips along the railroad tracks, thus cutting off large valuable

Ban on Smoking During Session of C. C. Directors

"From heaven we derived liberty and the rights of free men," quoth Lyman P. Clark before the newly-elected directors of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, assembled last night, "but by the hand and will of man have we lost many of our heaven-given privileges. I propose to strip this directorate of still one more privilege, that of smoking during board sessions." Mr. Clark pointed out his reasons and, through the thick smoke from a dozen blazing cigars, some of the directors were able to distinguish what he was talking about. So the wicked weed was "read out" of the all-hallowed sanctum of the chamber board and, by an amendment, the practice of "chawing" was included. Necessity of protecting the health and eyesight of the directors and courtesy to the women who have to attend the sessions were the prompting reasons for the banning of the weed.

tracts from rail facilities altogether. Co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce and the Glendale Realty board in securing adequate control of the industrial land to regulate their development and to some extent their price, was urged by Secretary Wood. Directors Fox, MacBain and others spoke in behalf of the industrial survey, endorsing the stand taken by Mr. Wood. Daniel Kelly, newly-elected board member, brought the matter of a "trade in Glendale" campaign before the directors. He pointed out that Glendale merchants, who would profit most from such a campaign, have ever been the firm backers of the Chamber of Commerce, and urged that the chamber reciprocate by

The management of this corporation will draw no salaries, and the overhead expense will be kept at a minimum until a value for the common stock has been firmly established. You, as shareholder in the company, may rest assured that your investment will be protected and safeguarded by the best efforts of well known, successful business men of proven integrity and ability, because the officers themselves have invested their own personal money in the stock of the Company. They, too, will be dependent for their returns upon its success. We haven't tied up a large amount of our capital in an expensive set of fixtures. We don't need them. They are mighty nice if the other fellow is paying for them. The men at the head of this corporation are all men who have made a success of life. They realize the value of keeping every dollar of your capital working all of the time. They realize the folly of unnecessarily tying up working capital in expensive equipment.

BEGIN WITH CHILDREN

To bring about any reform or any change in the ideals of the people we are learning that we must begin with the young. Inculcate certain principles in the youth of the country and we soon have a generation in which these standards are firmly fixed. This is an effective method of bringing about a change of thought, but it may be a dangerous one if wrongfully used.

A generation ago temperance organizations succeeded in getting into the curriculum of the public schools of the land text books which taught the dangers of alcohol. We now have national prohibition and a generation that is determined to see it enforced. The Catholic church long ago recognized the necessity of instilling religious principles in the child at an early age.

Those who favor Sovietism know the possibilities of spreading their doctrine in the schools, and are trying in this way to inculcate their principles in the young. To offset this influence, certain newspapers in various sections of the United States some months ago promoted a contest in which students prepared and delivered orations on the Constitution of the United States. There is no doubt but this contest had beneficial results.

And, now a New York woman who has at heart the desire for a lasting friendship between the United States and Great Britain is following the same plan in inaugurating in the schools a contest in which the pupils will contend for honors in writing compositions upon "The benefit to Christian civilization from a complete understanding and friendly relationship between the United States of America and the British Empire." Already a great many schools have enrolled and a great many educators have become interested in the contest. There is no way of measuring the results of such a plan, but should the contest become general throughout this country and England, it is almost certain that it would have a significant bearing upon the relationship between the two countries in years to come.

Those who are working for world peace also are beginning to realize that we cannot have universal peace until every nation agrees to it, that some nations regard treaties and other written pledges as mere scraps of paper, and that only the principles of international brotherhood taught to the children of all nations can result in doing away with war.

THE NEXT CONGRESS

The people are hoping that the next session of Congress will be characterized by very little new legislation except in the matter of tax reduction. There is a general feeling that there is no great necessity for a special session in March, for which some politicians seem to be clamoring. Laws cannot correct all evils and the tendency should be toward as little legislation as possible. And these laws should be drafted by those who have demonstrated their statesmanship and their understanding of the country's needs.

We had the spectacle in the recent campaign in California of one who drafted an amendment to the constitution making a state-wide appeal to the people to vote against this amendment because of errors in it which would defeat its purpose and nullify other beneficial legislation. No doubt this same individual will try again two years hence. Such instances tend to make a joke of lawmaking. If there is urgent need for such a law there ought to be those who can draft a bill according to legal requirements. We have too much legislation drafted by those who are incompetent or who have selfish interests to serve.

President Coolidge's policy has been less legislation in business, and the soundness of his position was demonstrated when he asserted that laws could not permanently solve the farmers' problems and was borne out by the shift in the agricultural situation due to economic conditions.

It would seem that the next Congress should be more harmonious than the one just holding its closing session, since blocs will have been eliminated and Senators and Representatives made to realize that the people desire the president to be a real leader and that his policies are to be carried out. The country would like to see a short, snappy and harmonious session of Congress characterized by real accomplishment and the minimum of new legislation.

THE GRADE CROSSING LAUGHS

The following squib is from Life: "I am the grade crossing. I am patience personified. Sometimes I wait for years for one small victim. But I wait with the consciousness of power, for the law is on my side and many men believe in me. Their trust makes my harvest sure. I laugh raucously to myself as I listen in the dim watches of the night to the tinkle of bells on the cross bars. It pleases me to hear the wanton sound. Many times they have tolled but tolled too soon. They should wait. I love the distant shriek of the locomotive, I love the whirring sound of the wheels, and I love the gay and careless laugh of the pleasant-voiced children as they chatter to the chauffeur. I love the chauffeur because he dares me. He tries to circumvent me and succeeds nine times out of ten. I love him for the tenth time, and as I brood and meditate between funerals I rejoice that I am a grade crossing."

No doubt the grade crossing laughed when the people of Los Angeles county turned down the proposition to banish him forever from this county.

BEGIN WITH CONSUMER

In a recent address Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania appealed for "public condemnation of buyers of illicit liquor whose money is the sole incentive of the bootleggers."

This is a good suggestion to prohibition officers and others who are working and wishing for a better enforcement of the 18th amendment. We have been accustomed to give to the consumer a little more respect than we grant to the bootlegger, the moonshiner and the smuggler, when he is the one who deserves the greatest censure. It is the price he is willing to pay for the stuff that induces others to engage in this infamous traffic and to take the risks necessary to carry on this outlawed business. When there is no demand for bootleg liquor the bootlegger and the moonshiner will go out of business. When public opinion places the buyer and consumer of illicit liquor in his proper class there will not be so much demand for the stuff.

SOUNDING THE KEYNOTE FOR 1925!

Jay Walkers and Joy Riders

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A proposition is on foot in New York City to make it a crime to cross the street in the middle of the block and to confine crossings to the corners where traffic policemen are stationed.

"If such regulations are adopted," says Mr. Dow, secretary to Deputy Commissioner Collier, head of the Safety Bureau, "it will mean the saving of about 200 lives a year, not to speak of the persons who will be saved from injury."

"Within the nine months of this year 366 persons lost their lives through being hit by motor vehicles; 224 were jay walkers who lost their lives not at crossings and 142 at crossings, but of the latter a large majority were also jay walkers."

Mr. Dow added that when the police have the power to restrain all jay walking the death toll can be halved.

The danger to the person who crosses the street in the middle of the block is fifteen times greater than that involved in crossing at the corner.

In order properly to protect the public it is not only necessary to subject the motor driver to law, but also the pedestrian. It is becoming more and more difficult to drive a motor through the public streets of a crowded city and the same authority which prevents walking on the railroad tracks should be exerted to prevent people from crossing the street in the middle of the block.

An ordinance of the crime in question should be passed by the municipal assembly, or, if the city authorities will not do it, then by state legislation.

The public must be protected even against itself and the loss of life and property has been too great by automobile to have this matter utterly dismissed.

Horoscope

With the Sun, Uranus and Mars in malefic aspect, astrologers read this an unfortunate day.

Warning is given to persons who occupy high positions that they face many anxieties and may have a strenuous winter.

Misunderstandings and even dissensions among men who are leaders of their fellow men are forecast.

Religious differences may be numerous, owing to the sinister power of Uranus.

All the signs appear to indicate a session of Congress marked by keen and acrimonious debates, serious differences of opinion regarding public questions and many bitter controversies.

This is a forbidding rule for all who desire to make plans for the new year and it is most unfavorable for all who seek employment or promotion.

Misapprehensions and misrepresentations regarding many important questions affecting the welfare of the nation may be expected.

Even though the world faces a new year with many hopes of peace and prosperity, the stars warn of warfare and world torments of many sorts.

This is not a favorable way for domestic harmony and the number of divorces will continue to increase.

According to the seers the new year will mark the passing of many old traditions as well as many later liberties.

Reactionary forces will be strong in many parts of the country, but they may not be sustained by members of the political party that is strongest.

There should be special care to prevent accidents, and aviators should be of their guard.

Persons whose birth date is in the augury of much change in the coming year. The young will court and marry.

Children born on this day may be restless and unsettled, fond of travel and impatient at monotony. These subjects of Sagittarius usually succeed best on the water.

The Best of Advice

By CLARK KINNARD

LOOKING AT A CLEAR SKY
The wisest man preaches no doctrines; he has no scheme he sees no rafter, not even a cobweb against the heavens. It is a clear sky.

So opined Henry David Thoreau. His doctrine was simple: Live your life, do your work, then take your hat. In his works you will find these things, among many others, to think about:

Aim above morality. Be not simply good; be good for something.

What recommends commerce to me is its enterprise and bravery. It does not clasp its hands and pray.

It is not desirable to cultivate a respect for the law, so much as for the right.

We go eastward to realize history and study the works of art and literature, retracing the steps of the race; we go westward as into the future, with a spirit of enterprise and adventure. From the east light; from the west fruit.

If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music which he hears, however measured or far away.

Each man can interpret another's experience only by his own.

Man's capacities have never been measured; nor are we to judge of what he can do by any precedents, so little has been tried. Men reverence one another, not yet God.

It is hard for a man to take money from his friends for any service. This suggests how all men should be related.

A man is rich in proportion to the number of things he can leave alone.

Provided you think well, the heavens falling, or the earth gaping, will be music for you to march to.

We go about mending the times when we should be building the eternity.

Every generation laughs at the old fashions, but follows religiously the new.

If you have built all castles in the air, your work need not be lost; that is where they should be. Now put the foundations under them.

Who's Who

In the latest American Army Register appear the names of sixteen general officers who rose from the humble grade of "buck private in the rear ranks."

An example of the arduous duties performed by these sixteen generals who rose from the ranks is found in the record of Brig. Gen. David L. Brainard, retired, who now lives in Washington, D. C., after forty-eight years' service in the army, the first ten of which were served in the ranks.

Born in Norway, N. Y., sixty-eight years ago, Brainard enlisted in the second United States cavalry at the age of 19 and after serving eight years in the cavalry transferred to the signal corps as a sergeant. The move was a lucky one, for it led to Brainard's assignment as first sergeant of the Lady Franklin bay Arctic expedition under Lieutenant Greely.

This expedition spent more than two years in Arctic exploration work, reaching the highest point north ever before attained and gathering the first authentic scientific data on the hitherto little known polar regions. Of the twenty-five men who set out on the expedition only seven were alive when Captain Schley's relief party rescued the nearly frozen and starved survivors from their pitiful camp at Cape Sabine. It was for distinguished and meritorious services with the Greely Arctic expedition, 1881-84 that Sergeant Brainard was commissioned as a second lieutenant, October 22, 1886.

General Brainard's fame as an Arctic explorer has almost eclipsed his record as a soldier, although he participated in numerous Indian campaigns, the first of which took place in the first year of his enlistment, when he was wounded in the face and right hand in action against the Sioux at Muddy Creek, Mont.

The G. A. R. boys of the valley are anticipating a happy time tonight, when they will help Chaplain C. R. Norton celebrate his 69th birthday. The J. O. C. class of the First Methodist Sunday School, of which Comrade Norton is teacher, will assist in entertaining.

A "Yankee Afternoon" will be given Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Clinton Booth, 1223 Lomita avenue for the benefit of the building fund of the Tuesday Afternoon club.

Seated on the platform at the opening of the new season theatre were J. N. McGillis, president of the Chamber of Commerce; H. A. Wilson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; A. T. Cowan, president of the Merchants' association; W. H. Crane, secretary; T. W. Watson, city manager; and W. E. Evans, city attorney. Mr. McGillis presided.

Tells Of Year's Work By Community Service

city attended the entertainment, bringing gifts of toys, clothing and food for needy children, instead of coming to receive candy and presents for themselves.

Two or three thousand people gathered around the tree, took part in singing Christmas carols, and enjoyed the program. The Choral club, assisted by the church choir, gave two numbers from Handel's "The Messiah," one of these being the "Hallelujah Chorus."

Under the direction of Mrs. Roy Russell, the beautiful Christmas play "Eager Heart," was presented before a large audience in the Broadway high school.

Easter Service—The next outstanding public gathering of the year was the sunrise service on Easter Sunday, more than 10,000 people having assembled on the top of Mount Forest Lawn at dawn for the beautiful devotional program. The service was arranged through the cooperation of Community Service and the churches of the city.

A chorus of 150 voices, gathered from the Glendale Choral club, the oratorio section of the Glendale Music club, the Burbank Choral club and the church choir, sang two numbers, accompanied by the Glendale Symphony orchestra.

This service was one of the outstanding co-operative events of the year.

Music Week—National Music Week was observed in Glendale in a big way early in May, the affair being in charge of Community Service, with V. M. Hollister as chairman of the committee.

In addition to large musical gatherings every evening of the week, the message of music was carried into every home and to every gathering, through the efforts of Community Service and assisting organizations. A featured event of the week was the program arranged for the shut-ins at the hospital.

Kite Day—The second annual kite day brought out a great many boys and girls who competed for certificates and ribbons. The interesting thing about this activity was the fact that boys particularly interested were those who were not taking part in any extent in school athletic programs. This offered a new outlet to a great many young people whose creative talent was brought to the surface.

Inter-Community Programs—Glendale has received a great deal of publicity and has become known as a music center through the various inter-community programs which have been conducted the past year by Community Service.

In March the Glendale Choral club, with a group of assisting artists headed by the mayor, journeyed by special train to Long Beach and presented a beautiful program before a crowd of more than 3000 people in the municipal auditorium.

During music week the orchestra and Choral club combined in presenting a group of numbers before 10,000 persons in the Hollywood Bowl. Both organizations received ovations from the assembled multitudes, their appearance resulting in much favorable publicity.

The orchestra and chorus also appeared in Highland Park and in Burbank. The community chorus from Highland Park paid a return visit to Glendale and gave a splendid program at one of our regular community sings.

Girl Scouts—Through the efforts of Community Service, a Girl Scout council, with Mrs. F. A. Beach as scout commissioner, was organized during the past year. A group of more than 50 influential women has been formed to stand sponsor for several Girl Scout troops.

One of the scout achievements was the summer camp conducted at the ocean for two weeks during the summer.

The council is now self-supporting and it has been allotted a budget in the welfare chest.

Playgrounds—The playground program was taken over during

ANNIVERSARY OF SCIENCE CHURCH

Occult Denomination Forms
Glendale Organization
One Year Ago

Members and friends of the Occult Science of Christ church, 113 South Orange street, are celebrating the first anniversary of the church's organization in Glendale. Of the past year one member said: "The year has been one of achievement and also of bereavement for the leaders, members and attendants of the church. It has been one of sorrow in that it has marked the passing away of the founder and original pastor of the church, Rev. Arthur A. Moore, whose death occurred May 6. Those interested in the growth and welfare of the organization, however, did not allow his death to hinder their progress."

"The church has gone forward to a year of achievement and success under the able and inspiring leadership of Rev. Mabel Moore, co-founder of the organization. The membership of the church has increased during the last twelve months. Rev. Mabel Moore, who resides at 333 West Lexington drive, is assisted in her work as pastor by her son, Guy Moore, who is an able preacher and speaker."

the past summer by the Municipal Park and Recreation commission, this being brought about through the efforts of Community Service. The equipment is being supplied jointly by the commission and by the two school boards.

This is another illustration of the Community Service policy of carrying a program only until some existing force in the community is in a position to take it over.

Orchestra—Last March, when Community Service assembled a group of musicians and formed an orchestra to accompany the singing during the sunrise services on Easter Sunday, no one realized what a splendid movement was being started.

Under the direction of J. Arthur Myers these musicians not only played on Easter, but in a very short time prepared a program which was given during music week in conjunction with the Choral club. During the summer the orchestra gave an open air concert in Patterson avenue park and a second was presented in the Glendale Avenue schoolhouse early in fall.

The City Council, appreciating the possibilities of such a musical organization, purchased some of the unusual instruments and has now taken over the orchestra, which has become a municipal agency. It is continuing to grow and is drawing an increasing number of expert musicians.

With some new instruments provided, the orchestra will take its place as one of the leading music organizations of Southern California.

Mrs. Charles H. Toll has been an inspiration as honorary president of this body.

Choral Club—The Glendale Choral club, with Mrs. Alexander Mitchell as its able president, has a regular membership of more than 100 singers, this group of people, directed by J. Arthur Myers, having furnished many splendid programs during the past year.

The club took part in the Christmas program and on Easter it was the nucleus around which the huge special chorus was formed. These singers have also visited several surrounding communities, giving Glendale the reputation of being a city of music lovers.

Coleridge Taylor's "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast" was presented by the club in a very able manner during music week. The singers then began work on Cowan's "Rose Maiden," which was given in the early part of November. They are now preparing music for Christmas and for a special program in January.

Community Sings—V. M. Hollister, chairman of the music committee, organized and carried out a series of community sings from January to May of this year, with Alexander Stewart, of Los Angeles, as song leader. Special programs were worked out and many people enjoyed this feature of Community Service.

Drama—The drama department of Community Service has done some splendid work during the past year. The Little Theatre Players were organized by Mrs. Max Lynn Green and, under the direction of Granville Forbes Sturges, staged two plays, "Mice and Men" was given on March 2 and "Kenny" was produced early in June and again in November.

It is the intention of the Little Theatre Players to make the Glendale avenue schoolhouse the Little Theatre of Glendale. Community Service is receiving the heartiest co-operation from the school board in this work.

The drama department is also responsible for staging a beautiful costume prologue for the Choral club's presentation of "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast."

A junior group of players, "The 27 Dramatic Club," put on a beautiful open air play in Patterson avenue park during the summer months, under the direction of Wesley Haverman. This club is responsible for its own productions, but gives them under the auspices and with the approval of the drama department.

Athletics—The athletic department, under the leadership of Albert G. Cornwell, has carried as big a program as the limited facilities would permit. During the spring and summer several teams of men competed in baseball on the Harvard High school grounds, directed by Normal Hayhurst. Lights were installed and used until the power shortage

DENTAL OFFICES OPENED IN CITY

Dr. F. C. Lee Former Oxnard
Practitioner To Make
Glendale Home

Elaborate dental offices were opened this morning at 106 East Broadway under the direction of Dr. F. C. Lee, recently of Oxnard, who will have two assistants and three chairs.

Dr. Lee was in Oxnard six years, but as he is the owner of three residence lots and a bungalow court in Glendale and was thoroughly sold on the business possibilities and climate of this city, he decided to locate here and rented the office at 106 East Broadway in June. He went east, leaving Oxnard on October 14. He spent two weeks at the Mayo Bros. clinic at Rochester and three weeks at his old home in Duluth, Minn.

Dr. Lee was active in Chamber of Commerce work in Oxnard and a prominent member of the Elks' lodge. Before leaving Oxnard he was tendered a farewell by the Elks and presented with an engraved gold card case. He was chaplain of the Oxnard lodge and organized the Elks' band there. He is also well known throughout the state as a poultry fancier and has been active at many state fairs and poultry association exhibitions.

Church Members Will Hold Prayer Meeting

Prayer meeting of the Grand View Community church will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Holt, 1331 Justin avenue. The subject for the meeting will be "What Can I Do to Move My Neighborhood Nearer God?" The meeting will be followed by a meeting of the committee arranging for the Christmas program, to arrange for the Christmas exercises. Rev. George W. Thomas, pastor of the church, is meeting with members of the young people at 1123 Justin avenue this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The class has been divided into two groups in a contest.

compelled them to be turned off. Tennis tournaments have also been conducted with George Farmer in charge.

No gymnasium program has been carried on, but the athletic department has given its assistance in furthering the gymnasium program being conducted under the direction of the night school.

Social Recreation—Through the generous offer of the Tuesday Afternoon club, several community dances were conducted for the young people. Mrs. Dorothy Morton Hastings, as chairman of this feature has done much toward providing a wholesome atmosphere for this entertainment for the young people. We have been forced to discontinue these dances until another place can be secured, as the clubhouse auditorium is in use every night in the week.

Eisteddfod—A new movement that the Glendale Community Service is sponsoring this year is the Eisteddfod program. The Eisteddfod is a movement for conducting contests in music, art and drama. The various classifications will give opportunities to all talented persons to compete with others who are either studying or who have attained proficiency in their work.

The Eisteddfod contests will embrace most of the southern part of the state, with Glendale, Burbank, Eagle Rock, La Crescenta, Montrose and Tujunga forming the Glendale district, where elimination contests will be held next spring preceding the final meeting of the district representatives.

Co-operative Community Service—In addition to special Community Service activities, our organization has assisted many other groups in planning and presenting programs throughout the year. Examples of this are the Memorial Day exercises and the more than a dozen Parent-Teacher association receptions, church programs, etc.

The Community Service headquarters has served as an information bureau throughout the year and has brought many strangers in contact with others in the community and enlisted their interest and participation in the community programs.

Summary—Without the wholehearted co-operation of the citizens of Glendale, the Community Service program would be ineffective. We are indebted to scores of individuals and organizations for their support and assistance. A few we must mention specifically, among these being the City of Glendale, the Municipal Park and Recreation commission, the city schools, the Glendale Union High school, the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, the Tuesday Afternoon club and both our local newspapers. Without the support of these last two named, the Glendale Evening News and the Glendale Daily Press, we could not reach strangers who are coming into our midst daily, nor could we extend our program throughout the city in as effective a manner as has been made possible.

The following-named are members of the executive board which has directed the program throughout the year: A. L. Baird, Mrs. J. R. Case, J. D. Fraser, George W. Moyse, Dr. Jessie A. Russell, C. C. Cooper, Mrs. Max Lynn Green, Rev. C. M. Calderwood, V. M. Hollister, Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, L. T. Rowley, R. D. White and Albert G. Cornwell.

A. L. BAIRD,
President.

CHAPTER XXXV

"Not a chance of it," he assured her. "I wish there were. I'd show you what an Admirable Crichton I should make. As a matter of fact, there's a little trouble with one of the pistons. We may not be able to get going for an hour or so."

There was a brief silence. Then Susan laughed gaily.

"What fun! Shall we have to sleep on board?"

"Not so bad as that, I don't suppose," was the cheerful reply. "If you do, though, I fancy we can manage to make you comfortable. Bad luck it's a head wind, or we could beat it. We're gaining a little all the time, as it is."

Baron Funderstrom finished his glass of champagne and looked to see if there was any more in the nearest bottle.

"There will be no doubt, I trust, about my being landed in time to get to Nice tomorrow," he enquired.

"Not the slightest," Grant promised, making a sign to the steward. "Now, gentlemen, we must finish this champagne. Then I'm going to introduce you to my Madeira. Vintage port I can't offer you, but my Madeira—well, I bought it on the island myself, and I believe there is nothing else quite like it."

They sat for the best part of an hour round the table. The women went out on deck, but Susan soon returned in glistening oilskins.

"Dark as pitch," she declared, "and little spits of rain all the time. Really, Mr. Frost, you do provide us with lots of variety, even in the way of weather."

Grant rose to his feet. "We'll have a look round," he proposed. "I thought we should have heard the engines before now."

They trooped out on deck. One of the stewards was busy handing out oilskins and sou'westers. They walked up and down for a moment or two. There were no lights in sight, and they seemed to be doing little more than drift.

"I'll go and have a talk to Captain Martin," Grant suggested. "Perhaps I'd better look down stairs first, though, and see what Henderson can arrange, in case we have to give you a shake-down."

"I'd like to come with you," Cornelius Blunn, who had been curiously silent for some time, proposed. "Which way are your quarters?"

Grant led them along the oak-paneled passage and threw open the door of his own little suite. Blunn, who was following close behind, suddenly pushed against him, so heavily that Grant slipped. The Prince, who had joined them on the stairs, slammed the door. Grant felt the cold pressure of a pistol against his forehead.

"If you utter a sound," Blunn threatened, "as sure as I'm a living man, you'll be a dead one. Hold up your hands and back away there."

Grant held up one hand and stooped and picked up a cigar with the other.

"I give you my word of honor that I am not armed," he said, "and I haven't the faintest intention of quarrelling with a man who is, now what's it all about?"

"Will you give the order to start your engines?"

"I'll see you damned first," was the emphatic reply.

Captain Martin and Chief Engineer Nicholson were smoking a pipe together in the latter's very comfortable but somewhat out-of-the-way quarters when, to their surprise, the door of the cabin was abruptly opened to admit two of the ship's guests, Cornelius Blunn and Baron Funderstrom.

"Good evening, gentlemen," the captain said, in some surprise. Cornelius Blunn was not wasting words.

"We want to know, Mr. Engineer, what is wrong with your engines. Why can't you start up and get us back to Monte Carlo according to promise?"

"My engines! Who said there was anything wrong with my engines?" Nicholson demanded.

"Mr. Slattery has told us so," was the curt reply. "He told us not a quarter of an hour ago that you were afraid to start them for fear of an accident to one of the pistons."

"Well, if Mr. Slattery said so," the chief engineer observed, "he's doubtless right."

"I do not believe it," Blunn declared. "We have reason to suspect that Mr. Slattery is trying to keep us out here all night for a purpose of his own."

"If you think that, it's Mr. Slattery you'd better talk to, sir," Nicholson suggested. "My job on board this boat is to take orders from the owner. You'd better

THE GATEWAY

Just when Eleanor Boardman, who plays the leading feminine role in "Sinners in Silk," the Metro-Goldwyn picture which is playing at the Gateway Theatre today only, thought that success was within her grasp, the show, in which she was forging to the front, closed; and with it—her hopes. She could obtain no other engagements. So she returned to her home town of Philadelphia, entirely downhearted.

But after spending two years studying the art of interior decorating, the lure of the stage brought her to New York once more. Her engagements then came thick and fast, until she strained her voice in a vaudeville engagement, and failed again.

She was obliged to leave Laurette Taylor's "The Nation Anthem" company because her voice was too weak. Thereupon she went into the movies.

Robert McIntyre, casting director at the Goldwyn studios, recognized in her an actress of true ability. He had a screen test made of her, which proved so satisfactory that she was immediately cast in minor roles of "Vanity Fair" and "The Strangers' Banquet." Then she was assigned the leading feminine role in "Souls for Sale," which clinched for her a Goldwyn contract. Since then she has played featured roles in "Three Wise Men," "The Turmoil," "True as Steel," "Wine of Youth" and other pictures.

"Sinners in Silk" is a Hobart Henley production presented by Louis B. Mayer. It is an adaptation of the screen from Benjamin Glazer's story. John Arnold was the cameraman. Also the usual Wednesday added attraction of selected vaudeville.

So and complain to Mr. Slattery, there's anything not to your liking."

"We have complained to Mr. Slattery," Blunn rejoined. "He has refused to order you to start the engines."

"Then that's all there is to be said about it," the captain intervened. "They'll start all right as soon as Mr. Slattery says the word, and not before."

Cornelius Blunn's hand left his hip pocket. He was a good judge of men, and he realized that threats were not likely to help him.

PITTS PLAYERS

"The Crimson Nemesis" is thrilling hundreds of theatre-goers nightly, at the tent theatre of Pitts Players, San Fernando boulevard at Cedar street, Burbank. An orchestra of eight girls playing old fashioned melodies adds an element of charm to the program. The curtain rises at 8:15 o'clock, though those who prefer to come early and select their seats may do so, the management states.

The cast comprises a talented group of artists who have already won the hearts of Glendale and Burbank theatre-goers with their excellent production of "The Fortune Hunter." Seeing Pitts Players is becoming a popular nightly pastime of hundreds of local people. The management assures all patrons that ample parking space for cars has been provided and that the tent has many special features for the comfort of those who desire to see a play under the most advantageous circumstances.

DOBSON PLAYERS

"Mamma's Affair" opens tonight at the Tuesday Afternoon club theatre for its second week in Glendale, with Gertrude Kellar in the leading role, supported by a full cast of exceptional artists. Miss Kellar has the part of a selfish mother who prides herself on her great love for her only daughter, yet who never fails to think first of her own needs. The curtain rises at 8:15 o'clock.

Joseph McManus, an actor of prominence, both here and in the east, portrays the role of Dr. Janes, whose candid diagnosis of wealthy neurotics is severe, is a character of perfect interpretation, and his scenes with Eve Orrin hold the audience spellbound.

"Mamma's Affair" is from the pen of Rachel Barton Butler, once a student in Professor Baker's celebrated "English 47" class at Harvard university. The play was selected from among fifty as the most worthy to receive the prize of $500 offered by Oliver Morosco for the best play of the year.

Uncle Wiggily

UNCLE WIGGLY AND JACK'S HOLE

Uncle Wiggily was hopping in this hole and jump out to along through the woods one day, not far from his hollow stump bungalow, when he saw Peetie Bow Wow, the puppy dog boy, scrubbing around in the dried leaves.

"Hello, Jackie, what's the matter?" called Uncle Wiggily. "Have you lost your tail? If you have, I'll help you look for it."

"Lost my tail? Of course I haven't Uncle Wiggily!" laughed Peetie. "My tail is fastened on me the same as yours is."

"Well, I didn't know," but I thought I'd ask, to make sure," spoke the bunny, with a smile. "But what are you doing here?"

"I'm looking for a rubber ball I lost," answered Peetie. "I threw it in here for Jackie to catch, but he missed it and ran away. Now I've got to hunt for it."

Uncle Wiggily helped the little doggie boy look for the lost ball, and pretty soon Peetie found it, down in a hole in the ground.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily! Look a funny hole!" cried Peetie. "I guess I'll fill it up so no more balls will be lost down in it," he said as he pulled out his rubber bouncer toy.

"Yes, it might be a good thing to fill that hole up," said Mr. Longears, and they were just going to do so when a voice cried:

"Please don't fill up that hole, it's mine!"

"Who are you?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"I'm Jack and that's my hole," was the answer.

"Do you think that can be my brother Jackie who dug the hole so the rubber ball would roll in," asked Peetie.

"It doesn't sound like your brother Jackie," said the bunny. And just then a funny little man, like a gnome or fairy, danced out in an open place of the woods. As soon as Uncle Wiggily saw him he said:

"Hello Jack Frost! I didn't at first know who you were."

"Yes, I'm Jack Frost," was the answer. "And that's my hole," and he pointed to the one where Peetie had found the ball.

"Do you mean, Mr. Frost, that's the hole where you live?" asked Peetie.

"Do, indeed," was the jolly answer. "I dug that hole and I am going to fill it with water. Then, with my cold, wintry breath, I am going to freeze the hole of water into ice. Mrs. Moo Cow wants to make some ice cream, and I told her I'd freeze her a chunk of ice in a hole. Now I'm going off to get some water and when the hole is filled I'll freeze the water into ice."

"Then I'm glad we didn't fill your hole with dirt," said Uncle Wiggily, as he and Peetie ran on through the woods, while Jack Frost went to a spring to get some water.

Now a little while after this the Fuzzy Fox came slinking through the woods. He saw the marks of Uncle Wiggily's paws and said:

"That rabbit has been here. He'll be coming back. I'll hide in this hole and jump out to catch him."

So the bad Fox jumped down into Jack's hole to hide and wait for Uncle Wiggily to come back, as the bunny was sure to do in a little while. But, as the Fox came Jack Frost with a pail full of water from the spring. Quickly the cold fairy poured the water into his hole, right on top of the Fox, not knowing the bad chap was there.

"Now turn into ice!" cried Jack, blowing his cold breath on the hole full of water. And instantly the water turned into a chunk of ice with the Fox in the center of it.

"Oh, ho! You tried to play a trick on Uncle Wiggily, didn't you?" whistled Jack when he saw what was inside the cake of ice. "Well, there you may stay until you cool off." And when Uncle Wiggily came past the bunny laughed at the Fox in the cake of ice. Then the bunny helped Jack dig another hole, in which was frozen another cake of ice for Mrs. Moo Cow.

And it didn't until late in the night that Mrs. Fox came with a kettle of hot water and thawed the ice cake from her husband and took him home, shivering and shaking. So once more the bunny's ears were saved.

And if the gum drop will let the lollypop have a ride on its roller skates, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's big jump.

"NEIGHBORLY DISEASES"—Part 3

SCARLET FEVER
What are you going to do, mother, before the doctor arrives, if your child becomes ill and there is a possibility of its having an infectious disease?

A short while back, we had an article under the title of "Isolation Before Diagnosis," written by Dr. Sieker, Health Officer of Sorewood, Wisconsin. I'll give you a resume of Dr. Sieker's experience in preventing infectious diseases. Briefly, it is this:

Dr. Sieker found that the Board of Health, of which he was a member, had failed in preventing the spread of infectious diseases and that they finally came to the conclusion that the reasons these diseases were not prevented was that most infections were passed on before a final diagnosis was made; in other words, the child who was afflicted was freely mingling with others in and out of school. Realizing that they were not doing much in the prevention of the diseases, they inaugurated a new policy; they isolated first and diagnosed afterward, and they placarded houses on suspicion of disease. The results were gratifying beyond all hope and expectation.

In view of Dr. Sieker's experience, the best thing for you to do is to follow his footsteps. Isolate the child as soon as you suspect it is suffering from an infectious disease until you know differently. Put the child to bed in a room by himself. Allow no one to enter except yourself or some other attendant, until the child is seen by the physician and a diagnosis made. Have the child in a room which you can wear in the sick room and take off as you leave. Use papers or clothes that can be burned immediately for all nasal or similar discharges. Take no article from the sick room until it has been disinfected. Thoroughly scrub your hands with strong soap and water for five minutes before leaving the room. Further directions for care will be given by your physician.

Needless to say, the room in which the child is confined should be pleasant and well-ventilated, for if the disease should prove to be scarlet fever, it means that the child will be isolated for 28 to 35 days. All unnecessary furniture should be removed, no toys or books allowed, except those that can be destroyed.

Until you get specific directions from your physician, put your child on a liquid diet and give him pure water in liberal amounts. The best foods for fevers are:

1. Fruit juices, fruit purees, fruit soups.
2. Vegetable purees—especially of spinach for its iron and calcium—and vegetable juices and broths.
3. Gruels, sweetened with malt sugar (it contains iron, calcium and vitamins) or milk sugar. Can beat an egg yolk in them later.
4. Milk, buttermilk, koumiss, and other fermented milks, and wheys.

The fruit juices and vegetables are for the first fevers, then if the fever continues, the gruels and milk should be added because of the need for more protein.

The dextrinized cereals, those in which the starch has been changed to easily digested dextrin, may be used at first when cereals are used. Wheat flakes, corn flakes or shredded wheat, zwieback, gruels or oven toast thoroughly browned till crisp way through, later oatmeal and rice and other cereals may be used.

These foods give energy food in the most digestible form and the vitamins and mineral elements in good proportion. Some of these foods may be given every two hours and liberal amounts of water should be given between meals.

Let me take this opportunity to urge your purchasing as many T. B. Christmas stamps as you feel you can afford. I feel confident it will add to your pre-Christmas thrills—the thought that you are aiding the laudable work that the National Tuberculosis Association is carrying on!

Is there any finer institution in America than the National Tuberculosis Association? I do not think so. I also believe that every housekeeper should secure the published by this Association and read them carefully; for these booklets contain invaluable information regarding the family's health and give many suggestions for making the home conducive to health. The housewife can make no better Christmas gift to her family than to absorb the health information in this literature and put it to practical use in the home. To help her, I am going to quote briefly from a number of the Association's booklets:

"A variety of simple foods in ample amounts is necessary to drink. Milk is the best food. Drink at least one pint a day. Eggs, meat, fish or cheese should be eaten once a day. Fruit and green vegetables, cereals, bread and butter should make up the bulk of your meals. You should eat enough to hold your normal weight. It is not safe to be too thin, and it may be unhealthy to be too fat. If you are keeping your normal weight and are getting too fat named, you are probably eating correctly. Ask the nearest clinic for a height and weight chart.

"Sleep with the windows open. Air in motion about the bed is healthful.

"No matter what kind of work you do, you should get outdoors for a different form of exercise at least one hour a day. If possible, recreation should be taken outdoors in the air. Remember that human beings work better, live longer and are happier if they play. At least once a day do something 'just for the fun of it.'

"See that you and your children do not move into any room, house or workplace where a contagious disease is being spread, or a chronic cough has lived, worked or died, till it has been disinfected by the Board of Health or your doctor. Any room or house can be made safe, without much trouble, by a thorough scrubbing with not carbonized soap suds and water, followed by exposure to fresh air and sunlight. Remember that mere fumigation without vigorous application of soap and water, and the letting in of sunlight and air, will not kill the germs of tuberculosis.

"See that no one in your house, whether he knows himself well or not, is ever allowed to spit on the floor or anywhere where his spit cannot be burned up or thrown down the sewer."

Tomorrow—A Boy's Slip-Over Sweater.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in care of the "Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Be sure to use YOUR full name, street number, and the name of your city and state.—The Editor.

Seven-Footer Breaks

Quart of Wet Evidence

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 3.—Petter Aronavage, seven feet tall, was arrested by state police and brought to this city by Officer Rafus, charged with violation of liquor laws. Just as Rafus was about to step into his machine with his tall prisoner, the latter arose to his full height put his arms about the officer's neck, seized the bottle of liquor which was being held as evidence against him and threw it into the street, breaking it. The officer then brought him before Alderman Davies here, who held Aronavage for court and fined him $10 for destroying the evidence against himself.

Colorless Hair Latest

Fashion For Fair Sex

LONDON, Dec. 3.—All the hair fashions of the past few years are surpassed by the latest fashion—that of removing every vestige of color from the hair. Many prominent London society women have adopted the new fashion, which is achieved by undergoing a treatment which thoroughly bleaches the hair. Hairdressers say once the hair is so treated it will never recover its former color.

Girl, 4; Gets Damage

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Because her prospects of marriage had been seriously jeopardized through disfigurements caused in a street accident, Ellen Alice Bills, four years old, was awarded $750 at Bow county court, London. Through her parents she sued the West Ham municipality, alleging that one of the municipality's steam rollers caused a horse to take fright and knock her down, inflicting severe injuries to her head and a large ugly scar on her forehead, which, it was stated, would remain for life.

BLAST ROAD FROM CLIFF ON SANTA MONICA COAST

Remarkable Piece of Highway Construction
Under Way; Will Open Miles of Shore
Line; Difficulties Are Numerous

By GIL A. COWAN
Of The Evening News Staff.

down yesterday this writer was bidding adieu to the construction crew of the most remarkable piece of highway building in Southern California.

It is the Silver Spray, a majestic roadway, the name suggesting itself—a scenic route to Ventura south from Oxnard in Ventura county to San Juan Capistrano on the Orange-San Diego counties' line.

Another year or two and the Silver Spray will be a reality for the Glendale motorist, opening an unknown land to the vegetable growers within three hours of Los Angeles, giving access to many miles of shore line with many beaches and potential parks and adding to the natural defense of the Southern California coast.

Blast Sheer Cliffs
There are 138 miles in this highway, according to Division Engineer S. V. Cortelyou, who escorted a party of newspaper men over the project yesterday. It is part of a program of highway building in the Southland involving the expenditure of more than $2,000,000 at the present time. Most of the money available for this work comes from federal aid funds and county appropriations.

In the Santa Monica mountains between Tebo in Ventura county and Topanga Canyon's mouth near Santa Monica, the Hauser Contracting Co. of Portland, Ore., is blasting through the last barriers on the Rindge and other estates which for long have withheld from the public the greatest playground on the Pacific.

But three-quarters of a mile remains of sheer cliff to be blasted away before a working road, all the way from Santa Monica to Oxnard on the north is obtained. It will be a year and more before the motoring public will be privileged to use this highway because of the many engineering problems involved and even then the paving of the route will withhold it from traffic until funds are found available for the work.

Opposition Strong
Conquering the Santa Monica mountains for a highway has been a task in which feats of daring engineers, fearless workmen and an indomitable desire on the part of Los Angeles, Ventura and Orange county officials have shared alike to spur the highway commission's prosecution of the construction program in the face of almost insurmountable difficulties.

First was the opposition of the Rindge estate, with a long legal fight finally gaining the rights-of-way, condemned and purchased by Los Angeles and Ventura counties. Then surveyors had to overpower armed guards, engineers clung to cliffs, or were let down sheer precipices to the ocean in order to make soundings for estimated fills, plant grade locations and otherwise prepare the ground for the contractors.

With the arrival of the latter a two and one-half cubic yard railroad steam shovel, which had been returned from the Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, navy oil base, was brought to Sycamore point and landed on the beach of the Rindge ranch when it was too large to negotiate the working road built to that point from Tebo.

Story of Work
A. D. Griffin, resident engineer, who, with his wife and babies, are isolated along a coast in a little cottage at Point Mugu, tells the story of the construction work now being carried on as follows:

"The camp equipment and steam shovel for the twenty-two miles of mountain road had to be brought in by scows from Santa Monica. This was a dangerous and expensive undertaking for the contractor, but landings were made without mishap in heavy seas. Only last week winds wrecked the surveying party's camp along the shore.

"Drilling and blasting operations present the main difficulties, for trails over the hills to the edges of the cliffs and rope ladders provided to make the faces of the cliffs accessible for 'coyote' tunnel operations of the dynamite crew. Pipe lines are laid from air compressors and jack-hammers hew out explosive chambers inside of the roadbed at grade, thirty feet apart.

Dangerous Work
"Charges are proportioned according to the yardage to be moved and the lay of the rock. Often a single blast comprises 3,200 cans of black powder handled under most perilous circumstances. For instance, in back-filling it is often necessary to enclose the charge by dynamiting the roof of the 'coyote' hole.

"Blasting is a delicate and uncertain affair here and recently the powder foreman miscalculated how far back one of his large blasts would break. He and two others who fired the shot, standing sixty feet away from slope stakes, were plunged 250 feet into the boiling surf below and lived to tell the tale, although all three of these men will not be back on the job for several weeks.

Cut Away Mountain
"Survey parties, including myself and C. G. Leland, L. G. Corey and assistants, often work ahead of the drillers, believing that the contractor has no corner on the hard work here which involves

Indian Relics Are Uncovered In Road Building on Coast

An archaeologist's paradise has been made available to those who seek Indian relics along the California shore line by the blasting away of Point Mugu on the Southern California coastline south of Oxnard in Ventura county by state highway construction crews.

Mortars, pestles, spear-heads and millions of shells from the fish which fed the aboriginal inhabitants of the Pacific slope are found in abundance, according to A. D. Griffin, resident engineer, who yesterday presented his chief, S. V. Cortelyou, division engineer in Los Angeles of the California Highway commission, with perfect specimens of Indian mortar and pestle in which acorn meal was ground.

Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Back From Long Trip

caused much commotion at last year's feline exhibit.

Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson left home September 24 and sailed direct to Naples, Italy, over the Italian government line which has replaced English steamships in the Mediterranean sea. The Italian steamship service is an innovation of the Mussolini regime. The party motored from Naples to Paris, making stops at Rome and Florence. The weather in the French capital was so miserable that sixty days were cut off the visit and the Jeffersons returned home by way of London two months before they had expected.

"Too much can't be said of Southern California climate," declared Mr. Jefferson. "There is nothing at Monte Carlo or the Italian Riviera or anywhere else on earth to compare with it."

Speaking of Glendale, Mr. Jefferson said he was surprised to see Central avenue so near completion. He praised the city council for the work done on this thoroughfare.

Gets Local News

Aside from these points the biggest thrill of his European trip was an incident surrounding a number of clippings from The Glendale Evening News, Mr. Jefferson said. Several hundred clippings from The News were sent to him by a Glendale friend. While seated at breakfast in the hotel in Florence one morning the word Glendale was mentioned by one of the Jefferson party.

From the other side of the dining room came a man who heard the word. He was Major Jordan, owner of large land holdings in the northwest section of this city. Major Jordan made himself known and enjoyed a pleasant hour going over the news from home contained in The Evening News clippings which Mr. Jefferson had.

"Major Jordan and myself agreed, that to appreciate The News we had to be separated from its columns for a while. We both missed the paper very much while away."

Fifteenth Trip

There was only one thing Major Jordan and Mr. Jefferson did not agree upon, the latter said, and that was which part of Glendale was really the best.

"Major Jordan held that the northwest section was the best part while I was equally insistent that Los Feliz boulevard was superior. All other respects I found the major a perfect gentleman," he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson intend to return to Europe late in the spring for a visit over the summer months when the weather is better. This was Mr. Jefferson's fifteenth trip across the Atlantic. It was strictly a pleasure trip.

The new work proposed carry commitments of estimated expenditures of $53,565,650.

Going up -- going down?

If business ran evenly along without heavy seasonal credit demands and fluctuations in production and distribution, banking would be simple. But it doesn't. It's up and down. There are peaks of extreme activity that strain a bank's credit capacity and valleys of depression that tax its ability to stand by its customers.

It's fine to bank with an institution big enough that the ups and downs of business and finance do not affect its ability to stand steadily by its customers, rendering always the same constructive service.

The Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank is such a Bank.

IDLE TIME SENDS YOUTH TO PRISON

Son Of Oakland Millionaire
Must Serve Term For Manslaughter

By L. C. OWEN
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924
SAN RAFAEL, Calif., Dec. 3.—Pampered sons of rich and indulgent fathers, along with the latter, can gather an added lesson to the tragic Leopold-Loeb case in Chicago if they will heed the prison philosophies of youthful Howard Hogan, an Oakland millionaire's son, who today, in the well-ordered affairs of San Quentin prison here, is just plain "convict number 40120."

The morale of young Hogan's rumination and his value to indulgent youths is that he confirms, in its entirety, the adage that the devil finds work for idle hands.

Annapolis graduate, University of California medical student, society favorite and youthful pursuer of pleasure who in all his 26 years never has known the necessity of earning his own way in life, young Hogan is in San Quentin serving a one to ten year term for manslaughter.

Fatal Auto Crash
He is in prison because, in the final analysis, the law failed to uphold the frequently heard contention that it exists for the poor but not for the rich. His speeding automobile ran down and killed two men as the aftermath of a gay party, also participated in by other idle sons and daughters of the rich. His father's wealth and the best defense attorneys available were unable to save Hogan.

"Parents today are worse than they used to be—unless it is that they are too trustful and too willing to believe that their own children will not do things others will. And the best little thing most young folks do nowadays is to pull the wool over their parents' eyes," Hogan said.

"Automobiles, spending money, lack of necessity to do anything, and do it well, and parents who are willing to trust children like rich parents trust their children may be charged up with my plight. I am no exception. The difference is that I was unfortunate enough to snuff out a couple of lives. Of course I didn't mean to do it—nobody ever does in a case of that kind."

Temptations Near
"The crux of the whole thing, however, is in parents not knowing what their children are doing and the unlimited use of automobiles by young folks. Automobiles bring roadhouses within easy distances and roadhouses mean drinking among young folks. It is an old saying that liquor and gasoline don't mix. Young blood, high powered motors and liquor are a worse combination yet. In my own case I am willing to take my medicine. I am not complaining—but if I am to be a horrible example let's make it do some good."

At the time of his arrest following the fatal automobile accident which cost two lives, young Hogan was enrolled as a medical student in the University of California. Always interested in surgery, he admits he did not take his studies seriously. His high powered car brought too many temptations within easy reaching distance, he says.

Also they are light enough so that the sound of galoshes footsteps does not resemble a baby hippo leaving the Nile mud.

WHEAT SHIPMENT TOTALS MILLIONS

Agricultural Foundation Says
170,000,000 Bushels Will Have Been Exported

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—One hundred and seventy million bushels of wheat will have been exported from the United States by January 1, according to the Sears Roebuck Agricultural foundation. Even with increased competition from Canada this year, the estimated amount will not be decreased, the foundation reports. The largest week of the season ended October 25, with a total export of more than eleven million bushels, not including flour. Combined exports of both wheat and flour for the four months from July to October, inclusive, probably will run close to 155,000,000 bushels.

Phenomenal Movement
The phenomenal movement to market has kept prices from showing any runaway tendency, and will mean less pressure over the remaining eight months of the crop year. The amount of wheat remaining to be sold is a more important factor in the outlook than that which has gone into the hopper, according to the report.

Probably 125,000,000 to 140,000,000 bushels more wheat was sent to inspection points this year than last, while the increase in the crop was only 70,000,000 bushels, the foundation points out. The inference drawn from the report is that there is considerably less wheat on farms than there was at this time last year.

GASOLINE FAMINE LATEST PROPHECY

London Professor Predicts
Five Years Will See
Shortage Of Oil

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The opinion that there will be a gasoline famine five years from now is expressed by Professor W. F. Burstell, dean of the faculty of science at Birmingham university. Only the discovery in the near future of a cheap, effective substitute can save the automobile and aviation industries from a fuel famine, which will put a complete check upon building through the world, Professor Burstell said.

"Existing oil fields are becoming exhausted, and although new wells are being drilled here and there, they only put a little further off the day when the world will be faced with a famine. The production of automobiles in the United States and elsewhere is increasing far more rapidly than the production of gasoline," he said, in an interview in Birmingham.

COLLEGE CANNOT HARBOR STUDENTS

Unprecedented Increase Is Noted In Enrollment
At Universities

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 3.—Unprecedented increases in enrollment of students are overwhelming the universities of the United States and bringing them near the saturation point in the number of young people who may go to college, according to A. W. Fry, supreme commander of the Macabees, in an address here.

"For the first time in 250 years Harvard had to limit its freshman class to 1,000 this fall," he said. "This is equal to Harvard's registration fifty years ago. Yale restricted its freshmen to 550, although it had applications for 1,000. Amherst, Williams and Dartmouth had the largest number of new men in more than a century. Vassar and Wellesley are struggling to keep their enrollment down to the predetermined limit."

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—"Why can't my tailor turn out a coat like that?" So exclaimed one well-dressed man today as he watched the newest woman's top coat strolling up the Avenue. The coat ended two inches above the skirt hem, which is shaped lightly at the waist and is completed with hip pockets.

New Proposal Is Made By Senator Underwood

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—A brand new proposal for disposing of the government's huge $100,000,000 water power project at Muscle Shoals, Alabama, was sponsored in the Senate by Senator Oscar W. Underwood, Democrat of Alabama, on behalf of the Congressional group that formerly supported the offer of Henry Ford.

The Underwood plan, under alternative proposals, would direct the secretary of war to lease the project to private interests before July 1, 1925, or then organize a $50,000,000 government corporation to operate the plant for the manufacture of cheap fertilizers. His bill would dedicate the great Wilson dam and its adjoining nitrate plants "to be used for the national defense in time of war and for the production of fertilizers in time of peace."

Don't Worry about Gray Hair

This Clean, Colorless Liquid Will Restore the Original Shade

Thousands of people have quickly banished grayness and have restored the original shade to their hair with the remarkable preparation known as Kolor-Bak.

Physicians and scientists know that gray hair is hair that has ceased to receive its normal supply of coloring matter or pigment from certain tiny cells in the scalp because these cells have become inactive. No matter what the cause, it is amazing to see how the grayness disappears when Kolor-Bak is used. It is the best known substitute for the natural pigmentation. It also banishes dandruff and stops itching of the scalp and falling hair. If you are gray, Kolor-Bak is all you need to make your hair look "young" again. No need to furnish a sample of your hair—no tests to make—as this one clean, colorless liquid is effective on any gray hair. Money back instantly if Kolor-Bak is not satisfactory.

Complete Text of President's Message To Congress

The president to report to the congress under the provisions of the constitution, is such that it may be regarded with encouragement and satisfaction by every American. Our country is almost unique in its ability to discharge fully and promptly all its obligations at home and abroad, and provide for all its inhabitants an increase in material resources, in intellectual vigor and in moral power. The nation holds a position unsurpassed in all former human experience. This does not mean that we do not have any problems. It is elementary that the increasing breadth of our experience necessarily increases the problems of our national life. But it does mean that if we will but apply ourselves industriously and honestly, we have ample powers with which to meet our problems and provide for their speedy solution. I do not profess that we can secure an era of perfection in human existence, but we can provide an era of peace and prosperity, attended with freedom and justice and made more and more satisfying by the ministrations of the charities and humanities of life.

Our domestic problems are for the most part economic. We have our enormous debt to pay, and we are paying it. We have the high cost of government, and we are diminishing it. We have a heavy burden of taxation to reduce, and we are reducing it. But, while remarkable progress has been made in these directions, the work is yet far from accomplished. We still owe over $21,000,000,000, the cost of the national government is still about $3,500,000,000, and the national taxes still amount to about $27 for each one of our inhabitants. There yet exists this enormous field for the application of economy.

In my opinion the government can do more to remedy the economic ills of the people by a system of rigid economy in public expenditure than it can by any other means. The costs of our national and local governments combined now stand at a sum close to $100 for each inhabitant of the land. A little less than one-third of this is represented by national expenditure, and a little more than two-thirds by local expenditure. It is an enormous fact that only the national government is reducing its debt. Others are increasing theirs at about $1,000,000,000 each year. The depression that overtook business, the disaster experienced in agriculture, the lack of employment and the terrific shrinkage in all values which our country experienced in a most acute form in 1920, resulted in no small measure from the prohibitive taxes which were then levied on all productive effort. The establishment of a system of drastic economy in public expenditure, which has enabled us to pay off about one-fifth of the national debt since 1919, and almost cut in two the national tax burden since 1921, has been one of the main causes in re-establishing a prosperity which has come to include within its benefits almost every one of our inhabitants. Economy reaches everywhere. It carries a blessing to everybody.

The fallacy of the claim that the costs of government are borne by the rich and those who make a direct contribution to the national treasury can not be too often exposed. No system has been devised, I do not think any system could be devised, under which any person living in this country could escape being affected by the cost of our government. It has a direct effect both upon the rate and the purchasing power of wages. It is felt in the price of those prime necessities of existence, food, clothing, fuel and shelter. It would appear to be elementary that the more the government expends the more it must require every producer to contribute out of his production to the public treasury, and the less he will have for his own benefit. The continuing costs of public administration can be met in only one way—by the work of the people. The higher they become, the more the people must work for their government. The less they are, the more the people can work for themselves.

The present estimated margin between public receipts and expenditures for this fiscal year is very small. Perhaps the most important work that this session of the congress can do is to continue a policy of economy and further reduce the cost of government, in order that we may work for the reduction of taxes for the next fiscal year. Nothing is more likely to produce that public confidence which is the forerunner and the mainstay of prosperity, encourage and enlarge business opportunity with ample opportunity for employment at good wages, provide a larger market for agricultural products, and put our country in a stronger position to be able to meet the world competition in trade, than a continuing policy of economy. Of course necessary costs must be met, proper functions of the government performed, and constant investments for capital account and reproductive effort must be carried on by our various departments. But the people must know that their government is placing upon them no unnecessary burden.

Taxes

Everyone desires a reduction of taxes, and there is a great preponderance of sentiment in favor of a tax reform. When I approved the present tax law, I stated publicly that I did so in spite of certain provisions which I believed unwise and harmful. One of the most glaring of these was the making public of the amounts assessed against different income tax payers. Although that damage has now been done, I believe its continuation to be detrimental to the public welfare and bound to decrease public revenues, so that it ought to be repealed.

Anybody can reduce taxes, but it is not so easy to stand in the gap and resist the passage of increasing appropriation bills which would make tax reduction impossible. It will be very easy to measure the strength of the attachment to reduced taxation by the power with which increased appropriations are resisted. If at the close of the present session the Congress has kept within the budget which I propose to present, it will then be possible to have a moderate amount of tax reduction and all the tax reform that Congress may wish for during the next fiscal year. The country is now feeling the direct stimulus which came from the passage of the last revenue bill, and under the assurance of a reasonable system of taxation there is every prospect of an era of prosperity of unprecedented proportions. But it would be idle to expect any such results unless business can continue free from excess profits taxation and be accorded a system of surtaxes at rates which have for their object the encouragement of investment or the discouragement of business, but the production of the greatest amount of revenue from large incomes. I am convinced that the larger incomes of the country would actually yield more revenue to the government than the present system of taxation, which has been scientifically revised downward. Moreover, the effect of the present method of this taxation is to increase the cost of interest on productive enterprise and to increase the burden of rent. It is altogether likely that such reduction would so encourage and stimulate investment that the country would firmly establish our country in the economic leadership of the world.

Waterways
Meantime our internal development should go on. Provision should be made for flood control of such rivers as the Mississippi and the Colorado, and for the opening of our inland waterways to commerce. Consideration is due to the project of better navigation from the Great Lakes to the Gulf. Every effort is being made to promote an agreement with Canada to build the St. Lawrence waterway. There are pending before the Congress bills for the further development of the Mississippi basin, for the taking over of the Cape Cod canal in accordance with a moral obligation which seems to have been incurred during the war, and for the improvement of harbors on both the Pacific and the Atlantic coasts. While this should be the further development of its projects, and we must proceed slowly, these bills in general have my approval. Such works are productive of wealth and in the long run tend to a reduction of the tax burden.

Reclamation
Our country has a well-defined policy of reclamation established under statutory authority. This policy should be continued and made a self-sustaining activity administered in a manner that will meet local requirements and bring our arid lands into a profitable state of cultivation as fast as there is a market for their products. Legislation is pending based on the report of the Fact Finding Commission for the proper relief of those needing extension of time in which to meet their payments on irrigated land, and for additional amendments and reforms of our reclamation laws, which are all exceedingly important and should be enacted as soon as possible.

Agriculture
No more important development has taken place in the last year than the beginning of a restoration of agriculture to a prosperous condition. We must permit no division of classes in this country, with one occupation striving to the disadvantage of another. Each must proceed upon equal opportunities and with a fair prospect of economic equality. The government can not successfully insure prosperity or fix prices by legislative fiat. Every business has its risk and its times of depression. It is well known that in the long run there will be a more even prosperity and a more satisfactory range of prices under the natural working out of economic laws than when the government undertakes the artificial support of markets and industries. Still we can so order our affairs, so protect our own people from foreign competition, so arrange our national finances, so administer our monetary system, so provide for the extension of credits, so improve methods of production, as to provide a better working machinery for the transaction of the business of the nation with the least possible friction and loss. The government has been constantly increasing its efforts in these directions for the relief and permanent establishment of agriculture on a sound and equal basis with other business.

It is estimated that the value of the crops for this harvest year may reach $13,000,000,000, which is an increase of over $3,000,000,000 in three years. It compares with $7,100,000,000 in 1913, and if we make deduction from the figure of 1924 for the comparative decrease value of the dollar, the yield this year still exceeds 1913 in purchasing power by over $1,000,000,000, and in this interval there has been no increase in the number of farmers. Mostly by his own effort, the farmer has decreased the cost of production. A marked increase in the price of his products and some decrease in the price of his supplies has brought him about a parity with the rest of the nation. The crop area of this season is estimated at 370,000,000 acres, which is a decline of 3,000,000 acres from last year and 6,000,000 acres from 1919. This has been a normal and natural application of economic laws, which has placed agriculture on a foundation which is undeniably sound and beginning to be satisfactory.

A decrease in the world supply of wheat has resulted in a very large increase in the price of that commodity. The position of all agricultural products indicates a better balanced supply, but we can not yet conclude that agriculture is recovered from the effects of the war period or that it is permanently on a prosperous basis. The cattle industry has not yet recovered and in some sections has been suffering from dry weather. Every effort must be made, both by government activity and by private agencies, to restore and maintain agriculture to a complete normal relationship with other industries.

It was on account of past depression, and in spite of present more or less favorable conditions, that I have assembled an agricultural conference made up of those who are representative of this great industry in both its operating and economic sides. Everyone knows that the great need of the farmer is markets. The country is producing more than it can dispose of. Almost the entire difficulty is on the side of distribution. This reaches back, of course, to unit costs and diversification, and many allied subjects. It is exceedingly important for us to have foreign trade, transportation and banking, and, in fact, our entire economic system, are closely related to it. In time for action at this session, I hope to report to the Congress such legislative remedies as the conference may recommend. An appropriate action should be made to defray their necessary expenses.

Muscle Shoals
The production of nitrogen for plant food in peace and explosives in war is more and more important. It is one of the chief sources of investment in the world. It is estimated that soil exhaustion each year is represented by about 9,000,000 tons and replenishment by 5,450,000 tons. The deficit of 3,550,000 tons is reported to represent the impairment of 118,000,000 acres of farm lands each year.

To meet these necessities, the government has been developing a water power project at Muscle Shoals to be equipped to produce nitrogen for explosives and fertilizer. It is my opinion that the support of agriculture is the chief problem to consider in connection with this property. It could by no means supply the present needs for nitrogen, but it would help and its development would encourage bringing other water powers into like use.

Several offers have been made for the purchase of this property. Probably none of them represent final terms. Much costly experimentation is necessary to produce commercial nitrogen. For that reason it is a field better suited to private enterprise than to government operation. I should favor a sale of this property, or long-time lease, under rigid guarantees of commercial nitrogen production at reasonable prices for agricultural use. There would be a surplus of power for many years over any possibility of its application to a developing manufacture of nitrogen. It is an found advantageous to dispose of the right to surplus power separately with such reservations as will allow its gradual withdrawal and application to nitrogen manufacture. A subcommittee of the committee on agriculture should investigate this field and negotiate with prospective purchasers. If no advantageous offer be made, the development should continue and the plant should be dedicated primarily to the production of materials for the fertilization of the soil.

Railways
The railways during the past year have made still further progress in recuperation from the war, with large gains in efficiency and ability expeditiously to handle the traffic of the country. We have passed through several periods of peak traffic without a car shortage which so frequently in the past have brought havoc to our agriculture and industries. The condition of many of our great freight terminals is still one of difficulty and results in imposing high costs on the public for inward-bound freight, and on the railways for outward-bound freight. Owing to the growth of our large cities and the great increase in the volume of traffic, particularly in perishables, the problem is not only difficult of solution, but in some cases not wholly solvable by railway action alone.

In my message last year I emphasized the necessity for further legislation with a view to expediting the consolidation of our railways into larger systems. The principle of government control of rates and public use is now thoroughly imbedded in our governmental attitude toward natural monopolies such as the railways, at once eliminates the need of competition by small units as a method of rate adjustment. Competition must be preserved as a stimulus to service, but this will exist and can be increased under enlarged systems. Consequently, the consolidation of the railways into larger units for the purpose of securing the substantial values to the public which will come from larger operation has been the logical conclusion of Congress in its previous enactments, and is also supported by the best opinion in the country. Such consolidation will assure not only a greater element of competition as to service, but it will afford economy in operation, greater stability in railway earnings, and more economical financing. It opens large possibilities of better equalization of rates between different classes of traffic so as to relieve undue burdens upon agricultural products and raw materials generally, which are now not possible without ruin to small units owing to the lack of diversity of traffic. It would also tend to equalize earnings in such fashion as to reduce the importance of section 15A, at which criticism, often misapplied, has been directed. A smaller number of units would offer less difficulties in labor adjustments and would contribute much to the solution of terminal difficulties.

The consolidations need to be carried out with due regard to public interest and to the right of established life of various communities in our country. It does not seem to me necessary that we endeavor to anticipate and plan or adhere to any artificial and unchangeable number of systems, but rather we ought to approach the problem with such a latitude of action that it can be worked out step by step in accordance with a comprehensive consideration of public interest. Whether the number of uniting systems shall be more or less seems to me can only be determined by time and actual experience in the development of such consolidations.

Those portions of the present law concerning consolidations are not sufficiently effective in producing expeditious action and need amplification of the authority of the Interstate Commerce commission, particularly in affording a period of voluntary proposals to the commission and in supplying the necessary pressure to secure action after the expiration of such a period.

There are other proposals before Congress for amending the transportation acts. One of these contemplates a revision of the act of valuation for rate-making purposes by the Interstate Commerce commission. A renewed valuation of the railways. The valuations instituted by the Interstate Commerce commission 10 years ago have not been completed. They have cost the government an enormous sum, and they have imposed great expenditure upon the railways, many of which has in effect come out of the public in increased rates. This work should not be abandoned or supplanted until its results are known and can be considered.

Another matter before the Congress is legislation affecting the labor sections of the transportation act. Much criticism has been directed at the workings of this section and experience has shown that some useful amendment could be made to these provisions.

It would be helpful if a plan could be adopted which, while recognizing the practice of systematic collective bargaining, will conciliate and voluntary arbitration of labor differences, could also provide simplicity in relations and more direct local responsibility of employees and managers. But such legislation will not meet the requirements of the situation unless it recognizes the principle that the public has a right to the uninterrupted service of transportation, and therefore a right to be heard when there is danger that the nation may suffer great injury through the interruption of operations because of labor disputes. These elements are not comprehended in proposed legislation, it would be better to gain further experience with the present organization for dealing with these questions before undertaking a change.

Shipping Board
The for the organization of the shipping board was based originally on its functions as a semijudicial body in regulation of rates. During the war it was loaded with enormous administrative duties. It has been demonstrated that this form of organization results in decision, division of opinion and administrative functions, which make a wholly inadequate foundation for the conduct of a great business enterprise. The first principle in securing the objective set out by Congress in building up the American merchant marine upon the great trade routes and subsequently disposing of it into private operation can not be properly carried out until the entire functions of the board are reorganized. The board should be transferred to the Emergency Fleet corporation the whole responsibility of operation of the fleet and other property, leaving to the shipping board solely the duty of determining certain major policies which require deliberative action.

The procedure under section 28 of the merchant marine act has created great difficulty and threatened friction during the past 12 months. Its attempted application developed not only great opposition from exporters, particularly as to burdens that may be imposed upon agricultural products, but also great anxiety in the domestic market for the goods of the world, upon their relative rate structures. This trouble will certainly recur if action is attempted under this section. It is uncertain in some of its terms, and of great difficulty in interpretation.

It is my belief that action under this section should be suspended until the Congress can reconsider the entire question in the light of the experience that has been developed since its enactment.

National Elections
Nothing is so fundamental to the integrity of a republican form of government as honesty in all that relates to the conduct of elections. I am of the opinion that the national laws governing the choice of members of the congress should be extended to include appropriate representation of the respective parties at the ballot box and equality of representation on the various registration boards, wherever they exist.

The Judiciary
The docket of the supreme court is becoming congested. At the opening term last year it had 592 cases, while this year it had 637 cases. Justice long delayed is justice refused. Unless the court be given power by preliminary and summary consideration to determine the importance of cases, and by disposing of those which are not of public moment reserve its time for the more extended consideration of the remainder, the congestion of the docket is likely to increase. It is also desirable that the supreme court should have power to improve and reform procedure in suits at law in the federal courts through the adoption of appropriate rules. The judiciary committee of the senate has reported favorably upon two bills providing for these reforms which should have the immediate favorable consideration of the congress.

I further recommend that provision be made for the appointment of a commission, to consist of two or three members of the federal judiciary and as many members of the bar, to examine the present criminal code of procedure and recommend to the congress measures which may reform and expedite court procedure in the administration and enforcement of our criminal laws.

Prison Reform
Pending before the congress is a bill which has already passed one house providing for a reformatory to which could be committed first offenders and young men for the purpose of segregating them from contact with hardened criminals and providing them with special training. In order to re-establish in these inmates the sense of law abiding existence in the social and economic life of the nation. This is a matter of so much importance as to warrant the early attention of the present session. Further provision should also be made, for a like reason, for a separate reformatory for women.

National Police Bureau
Representatives of the international police conference will bring to the attention of the congress a proposal for the establishment of a national police bureau. Such action would provide a central point for gathering, compiling, and later distributing to local police authorities much information which would be helpful in the prevention and detection of crime. I believe that if this is needed, and I recommend favorable consideration of this proposal.

District of Columbia Welfare
The welfare work of the District of Columbia is administered by several different boards dealing with charities and various correctional efforts. It would be an improvement if this work were consolidated and placed under the direction of a single commission.

French Spoliation Claims
During the last session of the congress legislation was introduced looking to the payment of the remaining claims generally referred to as the French spoliation claims. The congress has provided for the payment of many similar claims. Those that remain unpaid have been long pending. The beneficiaries thereunder have every reason to expect payment. These claims have been examined by the court of claims and their validity and amount determined. The United States ought to pay its debts. I recommend action by the congress which will permit of the payment of these remaining claims.

The Wage Earner
Two very important policies have been adopted by this country, which, while extending their benefits also in other directions, have been of the utmost importance to the wage earners. One of these is the protective tariff, which enables our people to live according to a better standard and receive a better rate of compensation than any people anywhere, anywhere on earth, ever enjoyed. This saves the American market for the products of the American workmen. The other is a policy of more recent origin and seeks to shield our wage earners from the disastrous competition of a great influx of foreign peoples. This has been done by the restrictive immigration law. This saves the American job for the American workman. I should like to see the administrative features of this law rendered a little more humane for the purpose of permitting those already here a greater latitude in securing admission of members of their own families. But I believe this law in principle is necessary and sound, and destined to increase greatly the national welfare. We must maintain our own economic position, we must defend our own national integrity.

It is gratifying to report that the progress of industry, the enormous increase in individual productivity through labor-saving devices, and the high rate of wages have all combined to furnish our people in general with such an abundance not only of the necessities of life, but of the conveniences of life that we are by a natural evolution solving our problems of economic and social justice.

The Negro
These developments have brought about a very remarkable improvement in the condition of the negro race. Gradually, but surely, with the almost universal sympathy of those among whom they live, the colored people are working out their own destiny. I firmly believe that it is better for all concerned that they should be protected in their full constitutional rights, that they should be protected from those intemperate positions to which, from their position, they naturally fall prey, especially from the crime of lynching, and that they should receive every encouragement to become full partakers in all the blessings of our common American citizenship.

Civil Service
The merit system has long been recognized as the correct basis for employment in our civil service. I believe that first, second and third class postmasters, and without covering in the present membership the field force of prohibition enforcement, should be brought within the classified service statute law. Otherwise the executive order of one administration is changed by the executive order of another administration, and little real progress is made. Whatever its defects, the merit system is certainly to be preferred to the spoils system.

Departmental Reorganization

One way to save public money would be to pass the pending bill for the reorganization of the various departments. This project has been pending for some time, and has had the most careful consideration of experts and the thorough study of a special congressional committee. This legislation is vital as a companion piece to the budget law. Legal authority for a thorough reorganization of the federal structure with some latitude of action to the executive in the rearrangement of secondary functions would make for continuing economy in the shift of government activities which must follow every change in a developing country. Beyond this many of the independent agencies of the government must be placed under responsible cabinet officials, if we are to have safeguards of efficiency, economy and progress.

Army and Navy

Little has developed in relation to our national defense which needs special attention. Progress is constantly being made in air navigation and requires encouragement and development. Army aviators have made a successful trip around the world, for which I recommend suitable recognition through provisions for promotion, compensation, and retirement. Under the direction of the navy a new Zeppelin has been successfully brought from Europe across the Atlantic to our own country.

Due to the efficient supervision of the secretary of war, the army of the United States has been organized with a small body of regulars and a moderate national guard and reserve. The defense test of September 12 demonstrated the efficiency of the operating plans. These methods and operations are well worthy of congressional support.

Under the limitation of armaments treaty a large saving in outlay and a considerable decrease in maintenance of the navy has been accomplished. We should maintain the policy of constantly working toward the full treaty strength of the navy. Investigation is being made in this department of the relative importance of aircraft, surface and submarine vessels, in order that we may not fail to take advantage of all modern improvements for our national defense. A commission also is investigating the problem of petroleum oil for the navy, considering the best policy to insure the future supply of fuel oil and prevent the threatened drainage of naval oil reserves. Legislative action is required to carry on experiments in oil shale reduction, as large deposits of this type have been set aside for the use of the navy.

We have been constantly brought to engage in competitive armaments. Frequent reports will reach us of the magnitude of the military equipment of other nations. We shall do well to be little impressed by such reports or such actions. Any nation undertaking to maintain a military establishment with aggressive and imperialistic designs will find itself severely handicapped in the economic development of the world. I believe thoroughly in the army and navy, in adequate defense and preparation. But I am opposed to any policy of competition in building up and maintaining land or sea armaments.

Our country has definitely relinquished the old standard of dealing with other countries by terror and force, and is definitely committed to the new standard of dealing with them through friendship and understanding. This new policy should be constantly kept in mind by the guiding forces of the army and navy, by the Congress and by the country at large. I believe it holds a promise of great benefit to humanity. I shall resist any attempt to resort to the old methods and the old standards. I am especially solicitous that foreign nations should comprehend the candor and sincerity with which we have adopted this position. While we propose to maintain defensive and supplementary police forces by land and sea, and to train them through inspection and maneuvers upon appropriate occasions, in order to maintain their efficiency, I wish every other nation to understand that this does not mean an armed and organized army, but a peace-loving and very hostile intent. I want the armed forces of America to be considered by all peoples not as enemies, but as friends, as the contribution which is made by this country for the maintenance of the peace and security of the world.

Veterans

With the authorization for general hospitalization of the veterans of all wars provided during the present year, the care and treatment of those who have served their country in time of peril and the attitude of the government toward them is not now so much one of needed legislation as one of careful, generous and humane administration. It will ever be recognized that their welfare is of the first concern and always entitled to the most solicitous consideration on the part of their fellow citizens. They are organized in various associations, of which the chief and most representative is the American Legion. Through its officers the legion will present to the Congress numerous suggestions for legislation. They cover such a wide variety of subjects that it is impossible to discuss them within the scope of this message. With many of the proposals I join in hearty approval and commend them all to the sympathetic investigation and consideration of the Congress.

Foreign Relations

At no period in the past twelve years have our foreign relations been in such a satisfactory condition as they are at the present time. Our actions in the recent months have greatly strengthened the American policy of permanent peace with independence. The attitude which our government took and maintained toward an adjustment of European reparations, by pointing out that it was not a political but a business problem, has demonstrated its wisdom by its actual results. We desire to see Europe restored that it may resume its productivity in the increase of industry and its support in the advance of civilization. We look with great gratification at the hopeful prospect of recuperation in Europe through the Dawes plan. Such assistance as can be given through the action of the public authorities and of our private citizens, through friendly counsel and co-operation, and through economic and financial support, not for any warlike effort, but for reproductive enterprise, not to provide means for unproductive government financing, but to establish sound business administration, should be unhesitatingly provided.

Ultimately nations, like individuals, can not depend upon each other, but must depend upon themselves. Each one must work out its own salvation. We have every desire to help. But with all our resources we are powerless to save unless our efforts meet with a constructive response. The situation in our own country and all over the world is one that can be improved only by hard work and self-denial. It is necessary to reduce expenditures, increase savings and liquidate debts. It is in this direction that there lies the greatest hope of domestic tranquility and international peace. Our own country ought to furnish the leading example in this effort. Our past adherence to this policy, our constant refusal to maintain a military establishment that could be thought to menace the security of others, our honorable dealings with other nations, whether great or small, has left us in the almost constant enjoyment of peace.

It is not necessary to stress the general desire of all the people of this country for the promotion of peace. It is the leading principle of all our foreign relations. We have on every occasion tried to co-operate to this end in all ways that were consistent with our proper independence and our traditional policies. It will be my constant effort to maintain these principles, and to reinforce them by all appropriate agreements and treaties. While we desire always to co-operate and to help, we are equally determined to be independent and free. Right and truth and justice and humanitarian efforts will have the moral support of this country all over the world. But we do not wish to become involved in the political controversies of others. Nor is the country disposed to become a member of the League of Nations or to assume the obligations imposed by its covenant.

International Court

America has been one of the foremost nations in advocating tribunals for the settlement of international disputes of a justiciable character. Our representatives took a leading part in those conferences which resulted in the establishment of The Hague Tribunal, and later in providing for a Permanent Court of International Justice. I believe it would be for the advantage of our country and helpful to the stability of other nations for us to adhere to the protocol establishing that court upon the conditions stated in the recommendation which is now before the Senate, and further that our country shall not be bound by advisory opinions which may be rendered by the court upon questions which have not voluntarily submitted for its judgment. This court would provide a practical and convenient tribunal before which we could go voluntarily, but to which we could not be summoned, for a determination of justiciable questions that they may be solved by diplomatic negotiations.

Many times I have expressed my desire to see the work of the Washington conference on limitation of armaments appropriately supplemented by further agreements for a further reduction and for the purpose of diminishing the menace and waste of the competition in preparing instruments of international war. It has been and is my expectation that we might have secured the aid of other great powers for further conference on this subject as soon as the carrying out of the present reparations plan as the established and settled policy of Europe has created a favorable opportunity. But, on account of proposals which have already been made by other governments for a European conference, it will be necessary to wait to see what the outcome of their actions may be. I should not wish to propose or have representatives attend a conference which would contemplate commitments opposed to the freedom of action we desire to maintain unimpaired with respect to our purely domestic policies.

International Law

Our country should also support efforts which are being made toward the codification of international law. We can look more hopefully, in the first instance, for research and studies that are likely to be productive of results, to a co-operation among representatives of the bar and members of international law institutes and societies, than to a conference of those who are technically representative of their respective governments, although, when projects have been developed, they must go to the governments for their approval. These expert professional studies are going on in certain quarters and should have our constant encouragement and approval.

Outlaw of War

Much interest has of late been manifested in this country in the discussion of various proposals to outlaw aggressive war. I look with great sympathy upon the extirpation of this subject. It is in harmony with the traditional policy of our country, which is against aggressive war and for the maintenance of permanent and honorable peace. While, as I have said, we must safeguard our liberty to deal according to our own judgment with our domestic policies, we can not fail to view with sympathetic interest all progress to this desired end or carefully to study the measures that may be proposed to attain it.

While we are desirous of promoting peace in every quarter of the globe, we have a special interest in the peace of this hemisphere. It is our constant desire that all causes of dispute in this area may be tranquilly and satisfactorily adjusted. Along with our desire for peace is the earnest hope for the increased prosperity of our sister republics and of America. And our constant purpose to promote co-operation with them which may be mutually beneficial and always inspired by the most cordial friendships.

Foreign Debts

About $12,000,000,000 is due to our government from abroad, mostly from European governments. Great Britain, Finland, Hungary, Lithuania and Poland have negotiated settlements amounting close to $5,000,000,000. This represents the funding of over 42 per cent of the debt since the creation of the special foreign debt commission. As the life of this commission is about to expire, its term should be extended. I am opposed to the cancellation of these debts, and believe it to be the best welfare of the world that they should be liquidated and paid as fast as possible. I do not favor oppressive measures, but unless money that is borrowed is repaid credit can not be secured in time of necessity, and there exists a moral obligation which our country can not ignore and no other country can evade. Terms and conditions may have to conform to differences in the financial abilities of the countries concerned, but the principle that each country should meet its obligation admits of no differences and is of universal application.

It is axiomatic that our country can not stand still. It would seem to be perfectly plain from recent events that it is determined to go forward. But it wants no pretenses, it wants no vagaries. It is determined to advance in an orderly, sound and common-sense way. It does not propose to abandon the theory of the declaration that the people have inalienable rights which no majority and no power of government can destroy. It does not propose to abandon the practice of the constitution that provides for the protection of these rights. It believes that within these limitations, which are imposed not by the fiat of man but by the law of the Creator, self-government is just and wise. It is convinced that it will be impossible for the people to provide their own government unless they continue to own their own property.

These are the very foundations of America. On them has been erected a government of freedom and equality, of justice and mercy, of education and charity. Living under it and supporting it the people have come into great possessions of moral and spiritual sides of life. I want to share in this direction. I know that the congress shares with me that desire. I want our institutions to be more and more expressive of these principles. I want the people of all the earth to see in the American flag the symbol of a government which stands no oppression at home and no aggression abroad, which in the spirit of a common brotherhood provides assistance in time of distress.

Deaths from alcohol in the United States were about 400 during 1923.

Blue-eyed Persian Cat Gets Honor for Third Time
At Glendale Show

Champion Powder Puff Chimes, magnificent blue-eyed white Persian male of Mrs. Frank Bundy, Los Angeles, is wearing a smile of triumph today on his aristocratic feline face. For the third successive year he has annexed the coveted honor of best cat in the Glendale Cat show, whose sixth annual exhibit ended last night at Hahn's auditorium, 109-A North Brand boulevard.

This year it was Mrs. Kathryn Ross, a Glendale woman, who judged the show and passed out to Powder Puff the choicest morsel of her professional favor. She also bestowed upon him best champion and best male in the show, while by public ballot this sleek, snowy monarch of Pussland was voted most popular cat of all the 130 entries. A whole careful bear lasting testimony to the scope of his victory.

A smile of triumph today also hovers over the handsome face of It-Too-Flag of Verdugo, superb silver male of Dr. L. W. Ashcroft, president of the Glendale Cat club, who won the coveted honor of second best cat in the show, as well as best novice. It-Too-Flag is a New York importation and considered one of the finest silver Persians ever seen on the Pacific coast. To him also went a gleaming silver cup and many blue ribbons.

Everyone was glad to see "Jerry," professionally known as Matilija Vincent, the shaded silver of Miss Clarabel Grim, again win best neuter in the show. Jerry is an enormous, cobby bear-cub of a cat, known and loved all up and down the coast for his many fine points and his gentle, genial personality.

Roi-Tan of Athens, beautiful smoke Persian of Mrs. A. B. Johnston, won best female in the show; Exitor de Verdugo, blue, of Dr. L. W. Ashcroft, won best sire; Barbe Bleue Skydust, blue, of Mrs. E. T. Harris, best dam; Barbe Bleue Nameless, blue, of Mrs. E. T. Harris, best kitten; and Michaelangelo de Verdugo, of Dr. L. W. Ashcroft, best short hair.

In addition, special prizes were awarded as follows: Largest exhibit by a non-club member, won by Mrs. Mabel Mann; largest exhibit by a club member, won by Mrs. Katherine Hoyer; largest exhibit in the blues, Miss Clarabel Grim; largest exhibit in the silvers, Dr. L. W. Ashcroft; youngest kitten in the show, Miss Margaret Quick; oldest cat in the show, Mrs. R. P. Spier; best exhibit by a child, Miss Virginia Lowry; best mother and litter, Mrs. J. Parrish; best dam, Mrs. E. T. Harris; best sire, Dr. L. W. Ashcroft; best kitten, Miss Mary de Witt; best novice, Mrs. R. E. Sides; best champion, Mrs. Frank Bundy; exhibit from the greatest distance, Mrs. J. H. McGuire, San Bernardino; best kitten of opposite sex, Mrs. Maud Durnford; best novice of opposite sex, Mrs. Mabel Mann; best spay, Mrs. William Weger.

These special prizes were offered by the following Glendale merchants:

Pendroy's Department store, Webb's Department store, Nadine Silk store, Shafe's Art store, Fisher's Variety store, Naudain Electrical shop, Glendale Feed & Co., Valley Supply Co., Irish Lined store, Poultry & Pet Stock Exchange. Acknowledgment of courtesy is also extended to the Independent Lumber Co. and to Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Frink.

Special prizes were offered by Mrs. B. O. Holbrook, Mrs. Frank Card, Mrs. T. L. McOmber, Miss D. Dewey, Miss C. Grim, Mrs. A. Jenkins, Mrs. M. Cunningham, Mrs. William M. Durnford, Mrs. Fletcher and Mrs. C. V. Hubbard.

Mrs. Kathryn Ross, who judged the show, was presented with a beautiful framed picture by the members of the Glendale Cat club as a token of their gratitude to her for her work. William Henry won the cat basket. The following members and friends of club contributed to the success of the show: Mrs. B. O. Holbrook, business manager; Mrs. Maud Durnford, secretary; Dr. L. W. Ashcroft, president and show manager; Dr. W. E. Frink, veterinarian; Miss Clarabel Grim, Mrs. S. E. Cooper, of the committee; Mrs. A. K. Jenkins and Mrs. J. Coppard, at the door; Mrs. J. L. McOmber, of the popular cat contest; Mrs. J. Ole and Mrs. S. E. Cooper, of the hospitality committee; Mrs. K. Hoyer, Mrs. William Weger, Mrs. M. Cunningham and Miss N. Dewey.

The show was given as a benefit for the Glendale Humane society's building fund and was a gratifying success, according to Dr. L. W. Ashcroft, who says of it: "I have attended cat shows in many parts of the country but have never seen a show where the entries were of a higher average than this one. People are rapidly coming to realize that a worthwhile cat costs no more to care for than a poor one, and are being educated to know good cats and prefer them."

Colorado Association To Meet on Thursday

To the public: The Colorado Improvement association will hold a mass meeting on Thursday, December 4, at 7:30 o'clock. All property holders are invited. There are several important matters to be taken up. One is the Colorado bridge over the Los Angeles river to Griffith park which will be a great improvement to Glendale. The association should have a good live committee working on the matter and get it going as soon as possible.

Another important matter is a committee appointed to work in connection with the city to get the lighting system completed at the earliest date possible and also to have the city to guarantee a price that to what the so-called city designed light standard is going to cost per front foot.

With a good, live committee working altogether from the west to the east end, we can make Colorado street the best business street in Glendale in a few years. The election of officers is also to take place at this meeting.

DAVIS ASKS MORE INDUSTRIES HERE

Head of Glendale Concern
Says Business Better
After Election

Improvement of business and industrial conditions in the East and Middle West since the national election in November is tending to relieve the problems of unemployment. Plants which several months ago were operating only two or three days a week are now on full time in many instances, while many factories which were closed down now are operating all or part time, according to Walter B. Davis, president of the Davis-Glendale Co., who has just returned from Detroit. He said:

"Although western business men here felt the recent slow spell more keenly than easterners, this part of the country was not hit nearly as hard as other sections. The fact that 100 per cent profits were the vogue in Southern California during the past several years as against much smaller margins in the East, made a 50 per cent reduction seem much larger here than it looked to the eastern merchant. Nevertheless the East was harder hit."

"The fine fall weather enjoyed in the Middle West has been responsible for a good corn crop, and the farmers are happy and contented. The feeling of unrest which characterized the rural sections some time back is rapidly disappearing."

Industries Needed

"Industries are the Southland's test need, but that they cannot be realized until Southern California people themselves stop investing their money in real estate and turn it into factories. A trend toward stabilizing realty prices is under way and this will greatly aid in inducing the people to turn their savings into industrial investments and consequently bring about a stimulation of industrial development."

"Because extra hauling charges are made by the railroads for bringing shipments from Los Angeles to Glendale, this city should seek industrial plants which bring in their raw materials and ship out their finished products by truck, rather than by rail. In other regards Glendale has many advantages over Los Angeles to induce the manufacturer to locate here."

Colorado School Plans Kindergarten Program

Kindergarten teachers of Colorado school will have a part in the Parent-Teacher "Kindergarten day" celebrated tomorrow at the school, Mrs. Frank W. Parr, president, announced. In addition to the children's entertainment arranged by Miss Lillian Brandon, kindergarten teacher, there will be a talk by Miss Helen Christensen, kindergarten training school teacher from University of California Southern Branch. Miss Christensen will speak on "The Kindergarten and Music Pertaining to It." Kindergarten mothers will be hostesses. The meeting will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

Nebraskans to Make Glendale Their Home

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Ashburn and two sons of Tilden, Neb., were recent arrivals in Glendale and have located at 309 Pioneer drive and hope to make the city their permanent home. They left Nebraska October 8 by motor making a leisurely journey with stops at various camps and arrived in the coast November 25. The trip was made in a 1917 Buick without a mishap or delay aside from occasional tire trouble. Mr. Ashburn is a carpenter and builder and this week started construction of a building in Pasadena.

Furniture Store Holds Fastidious Stray Cat

A white cat with long, silken hair wandered into Popper's Furniture store, 1508 South San Fernando road, at 5 o'clock last night. Thinking the animal might be the valued possession of some member of the Glendale cat show, the proprietor, Sidney Poppers, notified the police. He is keeping the animal pending a call from its owner, and said today that he will be only to glad to hand it over on proper identification, as the white puss has very fastidious tastes and refuses to eat ordinary food.

South African Hubbies Support Lot Of Wives

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Dec. 3.—King Solomon would have to look to his reputation of being the most-married man if he were living in South Africa today. Latest census reports reveal that there are men with fifty-one, seventy-nine and 110 wives. The man with the largest household, according to the census statistics, is a man with seventy-nine wives, 134 sons, and fifty-nine daughters, while cases of men with fifty-five wives, fifty sons and fifty daughters are frequent. The census authorities could not obtain confirmation of a man reported to have ninety-three wives and 184 children, owing to a great number of them being in different parts of the country. The census officer, quoting the first-named man, says he told him he was just getting a start as a family man. The number of native husbands is 718,292, and the number of wives, 554,500.

Three Minutes Is Long Time to Concentrate

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—How long can you concentrate. Three minutes is an extremely long period for the average person to hold attention fixed on one thing, according to A. G. Gulbransen, piano manufacturer, in an address at an educational conference here.

Iron Staple Removed From Woman's Throat

PHILADELPHIA, DEC. 3.—Miss Gene Terrill, of Burden, Kan., was en route home, apparently in good health, after an operation for the removal of an iron staple which had lodged in her left lung fifteen years ago. The object was removed at the Jefferson hospital with a bronchoscope. The staple had been causing her trouble for three years.

Fix your mind on one object, or one problem, and then time yourself how long you can concentrate your attention on that thing without your thought straying or being attracted to something else. If you can keep a bulldog grip on one definite subject for three minutes, you are far above the average person."

Syracuse, U. S. C. Elevens Counted Best Matched Squads In Country

Two of the most evenly matched elevens in the country are expected to furnish Southern California football fans with one of the greatest of the season when Syracuse university and the University of Southern California meet here in their intersectional classic, Saturday.

Although the great Orange eleven was rated as one of the three most powerful teams turned out in the far east this year, the dope sheet rates the Trojans far from an under-dog position in the east-west struggle.

Each team played nine games this season. Syracuse finished the season with one defeat, and one tied contest. The University of Southern California was defeated twice, West Virginia Wesleyan defeated the Orange cohorts on a break, while Pittsburg's strong team managed to battle the Syracuseans to a 7 to 7 draw. California edged out a 7 to 0 victory over U. S. C., and the next week the Orange eleven lost to St. Mary's 14 to 10.

U. S. C. has an edge over Syracuse both offensively and defensively in its scoring record this season. In nine games, the Trojans have piled up 233 points, and have seen their goal line crossed for 37 digits.

Syracuse pounded through a terrific schedule and made 154 points, while its opponents were amassing 42 marks against its score sheet.

Both "Chick" Meehan's Orange eleven and Coach Henderson's Trojans are expected to be at their best form of the season Saturday. After going completely to pieces after the California game, the potentially powerful U. S. C. team showed its strength when it swept to a 13 to 0 victory over Idaho University's great team two weeks ago.

Syracuse showed that it has again found its stride, after losing a disheartening game to West Virginia Wesleyan, when the Orange whipped the strong Columbia University eleven on Thanksgiving Day.

Following are the records of the two teams during their regular 1924 schedules:

SPORTDOM ALL OVER

By JOSEPH L. KELLEY
Of The Evening News Staff.

Rail birds at Tia Juana getting breaks at meet just opened. Runstar, whose record for breaking speed limits was left back on the eastern tracks a year ago, got a lot of publicity as the star of the meet. Runstar in showing made Thanksgiving day resembled a tired truck horse trudging over the cobblestoned pavements of New York's waterfront. Runstar brought reputation and broken arches to the Mexican track. That lets her out.

That's where rail birds got break. They had the "inside" on Runstar's condition and placed their shekles on Sunnysland. Sunnysland ran so far ahead of Runstar, boys figured the star of the meet was tied.

Opening day crowd came prepared to remain semi-conscious 'til last race. Just kept enough of wits together to locate the bankroll when bookie made rounds. Plenty of it and plenty added. With straight wet goods bringing four bits and mixed, six bits with a tall glass of heavily armed suds pushed across the bar for two bits, plenty of Uncle Sam's wherewithal passed to border consuls.

Tod Sloan who a dozen years back was the idol of race goers and who made a small fortune in one season at Saratoga, was seen in the paddock with Tom Sharkey, ex-heavyweight star. Both old timers in sports spotlight are down to their last quota of self-preservation velvet. Both, at one time, were rolling in velvet. Sharkey made a fortune in the ring and behind the mahogany bar on 14th street in New York. So it goes.

Trojans aren't getting such a bad break on post-season games after all. Syracuse plays Saturday and Santa Claus brings Missouri huskies as playmates. Now if that graduate manager handling the bookings in the Trojan camp could bring on "Red" Grange's little playmates for a New Year's resolution, maybe a few of the thousands who will journey to Pasadena could be shunted off to Coliseum. What sweet revenge.

Lot of smoke but no decisions on Jack Britton's making L. A. his home for period after 12-round stanzas are okayed and Governor Richardson picks half-dozen or more names out of that list of 150 supermen he says he has ready to step in and judge 'em at the ring side.

Not so good—this proposed Britton go. Britton is an old man as fighters go. He fought his last when he met Benny Leonard. Benny got too heavy for the lightweight material and took on Jack for a meat ticket to tide him over and keep dents out of the bank account. Not so good.

Jack Doyle tried Britton out last night at Vernon in a catchweights contest with Sailor Billy Vincent on the other end. As a four-round attraction Jack can do as well as most of the younger giants whose managers have them believing they are all but ready to cop Dempsey's title.

If all the boxing stadiums proposed go up in these parts Southern California will look like winter quarters for Barnum & Bailey's circus.

Jack Doyle, boss over at Vernon, is going to build one. Jack Dempsey is going to, so is Jack Kerns. Now comes a movie magnate who says he's going to build one. Carl Laemmle, who owns Universal City and has "made" more movie stars than some press agents think they have, wants to put some 12-rounders with Dempsey on one end of the purse.

Laemmle probably would succeed in the venture. Great business head and can look ahead. Carl doesn't know technicalities laid out by Kid Queensberry, but he does know the dollars like to hang out and where they are most likely to drop. Anyone who can produce the flickering drama and make a fortune can produce most anything and make change.

That "set-up" artist from below the Rio Grande who was graciously permitted to slap Fred Fulton into slumberland after 17 seconds of waltzing in Culver City is aboard a cross-country rattler for mosquitoland in the Jersey flats. We refer to Tony Fuente. They took along a bag of Mexican jumping beans as sparring partners when the ride over the Mojave grows tiresome.

Tony is going to try and put the slap on Charlie Weinert, the big mosquito who punched the Argentine bull, Luis Firpo, into birdland. If Charlie will listen to reason it ought to be a cinch for Tony.

More records are broken at Culver City nowadays than Brunswick makes. Every time a speed demon warms up for the 250-mile classic to be dashed out next Sunday, three or four marks are set. Wonder what they're doing with all of 'em, and if so, what of it and why?

LAWRENCE PERRY SAYS

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Of all the teams in the country that annually stand out in point of football proficiency Notre Dame is the one eleven that has neither been defeated nor tied.

This is a most interesting fact and makes the season of 1924 unique. Whether this situation is due to general mediocrity or a pretty general interest in the standard of excellence has been a subject of debate wherever football enthusiasts have gathered.

The writer believes the latter theory to be the correct one. Yale, for example, was appreciably superior to the average Yale team of recent years and Princeton despite her defeats, was better than her modern average. Dartmouth, Pennsylvania, Rutgers, Lafayette, Williams, Columbia, the Army, Boston college, Cornell, Aggie, are among the eastern elevens that have shown marked improvement.

In the south there has never been a season in which football has been so well played on so wide a scale. Georgia, Washington and Lee, Centre, Alabama, Georgia Tech, Vanderbilt, have been absolutely high grade and other outfits have made advances that are significant, indeed.

Of the western conference it is not so easy to speak but the writer most certainly believes that the fact that not a member of the big ten escaped a defeat or a tie was due to exceptional heights which various constituents were able to attain at important moments, rather than to a general state of mediocrity. The fact that no team attained a peak, a team was unable to hold its position thereon bespeaks in the writer's mind an alluring distribution of strong rivalry.

California dropped from solitary supremacy on the Pacific coast slope not because the Bears were weak but because other outfits improved their standard of play. The Missouri conference membership has improved to the point where Nebraska no longer stands out in the clear, separated from the rest by a wide margin of superiority. In the southwest, the Rocky Mountain region and the South Atlantic not a leading team had any idea what Saturday it would run into a snag.

What is the answer? There is but one. The football coaching schools which are attended by young coaches—and old ones, too—the country wide have placed the technique of the game in the hands of all. Schools at University of Illinois, Michigan, Harvard, Columbia, William and Mary, to mention some of the leading forums of football instruction, are doing their work well and the time has gone, it would seem, when any institution can stand forth as holding the talisman of football in its exclusive possession.

The ratings of teams: East—Yale, Pennsylvania and Dartmouth bracketed together. Big Three—Yale, Princeton and Harvard. Western conference—Chicago, Illinois and Iowa bracketed for second. Michigan, Purdue, Minnesota, Ohio State, Indiana, Northwestern and Wisconsin. Southern conference—(rated by Les Goates, Salt Lake City Desert News)—Colorado U. Utah, Colorado A. S. G. Utah, Denver, Utah State, Montana State, Young U. Colorado College, Colorado School of Mines, Wyoming. Missouri Valley—(rated by Frederick T. Ware, Omaha World-Herald)—Iowa State and Missouri bracketed for first. Drake, Iowa State, Grinnell, Kansas State, Kansas, Oklahoma, Oklahoma State, Oklahoma A. & M., Texas and Texas Christian.

Southern—(rated by Zip Newman, Birmingham News)—Georgia, Alabama, Vanderbilt, Georgia Tech, Tulane, Florida, Mississippi A. & M., Auburn, Louisiana State, Tennessee, Mississippi. South Atlantic—(rated by W. T. Christian, Richmond News-Leader)—Navy, Georgetown, Washington and Lee and Virginia, Wakeforest, Virginia Poly, Maryland, North Carolina, V. M. I. and William and Mary, Carolina State. Rocky Mountain conference—(rated by Les Goates, Salt Lake City Desert News)—Colorado U. Utah, Colorado A. S. G. Utah, Denver, Utah State, Montana State, Young U. Colorado College, Colorado School of Mines, Wyoming. Missouri Valley—(rated by Frederick T. Ware, Omaha World-Herald)—Iowa State and Missouri bracketed for first. Drake, Iowa State, Grinnell, Kansas State, Kansas, Oklahoma, Oklahoma State, Oklahoma A. & M., Texas and Texas Christian.

COMPTON ELEVEN IN SEMI-FINALS

Defeat Pomona 35 to 20 In Playoff of Tie; Class C Finals Today

By eliminating Pomona yesterday at Santa Ana, 35 to 20, Compton entered the semi-finals in the race for Southern California honors in the Class A grid playoff. Compton is scheduled to meet Santa Maria, Saturday. The location has not been decided. Glendale will meet Orange at Santa Ana on the same day, and the winner of the Glendale-Orange game will meet the winner of the Compton-Santa Maria game next week for the title.

Pomona and Compton battled to a 13-13 tie on Thanksgiving day at Pomona, and the game was replayed yesterday. Captain Rozelle, fullback for the Bay league champions, led the attack against Pomona yesterday. Compton scored a touchdown in the first quarter, two in the second and two in the third. Pomona scored a touchdown in the first few minutes of play, another in the second, but failed to convert, and another in the third period.

The finals in the Class C division will be played at 2 p. m. at noon at Huntington Park, with Glendale as the opponents of the Bay league winners. The local squad is favored to cop the Southern California title.

The Class B final game is scheduled for Friday, but the location has not been determined. Glendale will meet Pasadena, winner in the Coast league. The local lightweights went through the first round by beating San Bernardino 14 to 0, and eliminated Huntington Park in the second round, 10 to 7. Pasadena beat Burbank, 75 to 0, in the first round, and Anaheim, 68 to 0, in the second round. A stiff battle is predicted when the two teams clash Friday.

There were only two rounds in the Class C division, Glendale defeating Pasadena, 14 to 6, and Huntington Park eliminating Garden Grove, 14 to 0.

The Class A playoffs in the third round. Results of the first round were: Orange 28, San Diego 20; Colton 31, Corona 6; Glendale 6, Van Nuys 6; Paso Robles forfeited to Santa Maria; Pomona 20, El Centro 16. Second round: Orange 14, Sweetwater 0; Colton 0, Robert 28; Van Nuys 2, Santa Maria 34; Pomona 13, Compton 13, replayed, Pomona 20, Compton 35.

Expect Fuente to Box Weinert December 15
NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—J. Frank Black, matchmaker for the Newark Sportsmen's club, said today he had received no direct word to the effect that Tony Fuente, Mexican heavyweight boxer, who "flattened" Fred Fulton in thirty seconds recently would not fight Charley Weinert, conqueror of Luis Firpo, in Newark December 15, as per schedule.

"I'm not going by reports," Black said. He declared that if Fuente had been correctly quoted he would take steps to force fulfillment of a fight agreement made between himself and Fuente's manager.

JOHN B. FOSTER'S VIEWS

Special Correspondence of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—The army will have the selection of the site for next year's army-navy football game and it is not very likely that Baltimore will be chosen. In fact, New York is almost certain to be selected.

This, however, is no reflection on the way Baltimore handled this season's classic on Saturday. Rather it will represent a wish to move the game up to the larger metropolis again in view of the fact that the middies took it as far south as Baltimore.

Baltimore handled Saturday's game very well in all the details regarding its stadium and its seating facilities. Never has the contest been played on a more roomy field. Indeed, if anything, it was too roomy, as the spectators were too far from the plays. There was a fine view of the contest from all seats however, and the pitch of the stadium at Baltimore is tip-top for observation purposes.

In the matter of transportation facilities, Baltimore cannot compare with New York and for that matter is not so well equipped as Philadelphia. There was little gouging in the southern city on a large scale, although in some of the hotels there was a disposition to be autocratic.

It is not the public that complains about lack of conveniences at army-navy games so much as it is the army and navy people themselves. Army and navy officers have been charged double for hotel accommodations more than once in one city which has become unpopular as a scene for the service classic.

The navy will not object to coming back to New York for the 1925 contest, though it is a long ride from Annapolis. In a general way the navy has been finely treated in New York and it is always easy to keep away from the hotels and theatres that are inclined to gouge.

There is little likelihood of the game being played in Washington, as has been suggested. Nor is there much likelihood of its being played in Chicago. Two principal reasons are that it would cost too much to transport the teams and the student cheering sections so far west and that it would make too big a dent in classroom attendance for too many days.

A railroad 2000 miles long across the Sahara desert is planned.

TROJANS SET FOR HOMECOMING DAY

Two Grid Banquets Feature Big Rally Of U. S. C. Alumni On Friday

Inaugurating "Homecoming Day," thousands of University of Southern California alumni will return to their old haunts at the Los Angeles institution on Friday, the day before the Trojans' intersectional classic with Syracuse university.

Fraternities and sororities will greet the return of their graduate members with open arms. Besides the entertainments offered by the organizations, a multitude of diversions have been planned for the alumni by the undergraduate body as a whole, under the auspices of the Trojan Knights and the Amazon societies.

Two Grid Banquets
The two biggest affairs of "Homecoming" will be staged Friday night when two separate football banquets will be staged. The men's banquet will be staged in the armory at Exposition park, while the women's affair will be held in President von Kleinsmid's office in the administration building of the university.

Glen Barcome, prominent alumnus, has been appointed chairman of the men's banquet. Barcome says the banquet will be no drawn out affair with a lot of dry speakers holding the floor for hours, but will be more in the nature of a pep producer to get everybody in the proper spirit for the big rally that will be held on Bovard field at 8 o'clock.

To-Night's CARD
Seven bouts with seven sailors from seven battleships pitted against seven "landlubbers" will provide fight fans with plenty of thrills tonight at Wilmington A. C. On the card are: Sailor Jimmy Byrnes and Leo Barlage, main event; Sailor Brett and Marty Kane in the semi-windup; Sailor Spence and Eddie Brown in the special spot; Sailor Shifty May and Jackie Sherman, Sailor Buddy Seigel and Earl Grigsby, Sailor Roy Baile and Jimmy Adaire, Sailor Mills and Battling Dugan.

Broad prices have been raised four times in London this year.

The reason is, according to Eckersley, that the United States is catering to the radio public from the point of view of making radio broadcasting an electrical hobby and not an artistic enjoyment.

BOLSHEVISM OUT IN BALKAN CITY

Macedonia, Political Center, Successfully Stamps Out Enemy

SOFIA, Nov. 3.—Macedonia, the Alsace-Lorraine of the Balkans and the starting point of many recent Balkan political convulsions, has successfully passed through another crisis in the eradication of bolshevism influence in her affairs which was calculated to stir up unrest in all Balkan countries.

Bolshevism influence was behind the attempted coup d'etat in Bulgaria last September. It is believed, failing, it is alleged the bolshevist agents turned their attention to the Macedonian organization, one of the most powerful influences in Central and Eastern Europe.

Success Only Partial

Their success in the Macedonian organization was only partial, for a majority of the Macedonians were averse to the Moscow methods and ideals. They failed in their attempt to overthrow the high command of the organization, although they succeeded in murdering the Macedonian chief, Tudor Alexandroff.

Forty members of the organization, all believed to have had connections with Moscow, were immediately executed. General Protogeroff took up the duties of his fallen chief and proved equal to the occasion. He also had been marked for death.

WOMEN LEAVING INDUSTRY FIELD

First Big Exodus Noted Of Feminine Workers Since World War

HORNELL, N. Y., Dec. 3.—The exodus of women from industry is on a survey showed here today that, with few exceptions, the women who were recruited during the World War period to replace men in shops and factories have surrendered their positions to employees of the sterner sex.

In a few instances, however, women have been retained in work formerly done by men, which it has been found that the women do more efficiently.

Nimble Fingers Win

Much of the work done by the women during the war was heavier than employers deem suitable permanent employment for women and, although women employees are acknowledged efficient and capable, they were displaced by men.

In the case of occupations which require skill rather than brawn, the answer is different. Where patience and dexterity of fingers are a factor, women workers have been admitted superior to men and are still employed in jobs which were closed to them prior to the war.

LITTLE ENTENTE HAS GREAT ARMY

France's Military Strength Doubled By Addition 6,400,000 Men

PRAGUE, Dec. 3.—The fact that the armies of the Little Entente have a war strength of 6,400,000 men is revealed by a Prague semi-official newspaper.

Czecho-Slovakia, says the publication, has a standing army of 150,000 men and mobilization strength of 1,000,000. South Slavia has a standing army of 125,000 and a war strength of 2,400,000. Poland, which is a member of the Little Entente, but is more or less bound to it due to treaty obligations, has a standing army of 230,000, and a war strength of 2,000,000.

With a war strength of 6,400,000 and a standing army strength of 640,000 men, the Little Entente is a force to be reckoned with," comments the newspaper, which also points out that the combined forces double the military strength of France.

Fraternal Executive Talks On Traffic Law

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Would you pass another car at a rate of thirty miles an hour while blindfolded?

That is what happens when an approaching car fails to dim its lights, according to Richard E. Kropf, supreme regent of the Royal Arcanum, who addressed a safety conference here. It requires a few seconds for the eye to readjust itself to the darkness during which your car travels more than 100 yards, he pointed out.

LAWRENCE PERRY SAYS

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Southern football at its best is as good as the best in any section of the country. This is one of the chief impressions of the writer's southern trip, which concluded at Danville, Ky., on Saturday, with the game between Centre and the University of Georgia.

There are poor defensive teams in the south, not a few of them, just as there are poor defensive teams everywhere else. But there are also in Dixie others that play by the cardinal departments of the game and leave the critical observer with nothing to desire.

There has always been first string material in the south, but inadequate, if any, preparatory school experience and coaches who were inclined to neglect many things in taking short cuts to scoring power as well as lack of substitutes, kept Dixie teams behind in point of technical excellence.

But in recent years this has changed and the southland now has coaches and assistants who are deeply versed in the technique of football in all its branches and hand-in-hand with their desire for victory is a keen enthusiasm for the production of teams that the keen observer would call finished.

Centre, Alabama, Vanderbilt, Georgia Tech, Tulane, Washington and Lee, Florida, are leading the way in respect to enlightened methods, are constantly studying the game with a view to high excellence, and today have nothing to show that would strike the visiting critics as suggesting provincialism. In other words, a good team in the south would be good anywhere and a bad team no worse than the inferior eleven of any other section.

The greatest step forward which the writer has noted in this and other visits of the recent past is the cordial appreciation of football teachers in the practice and uses of defense. In the Alabama game of defense, indeed, Alabama made of her defense a veritable attack and when this is done, the so-called negative side of the game is carried to its heights.

There are universities in the south that are scrupulous in their observance of the letter as well as the spirit of entrance eligibility and the scholastic conditions under which athletes may represent their colleges on the athletic field.

Vanderbilt stands out as a very shining example in this respect, but to the eternal credit of southern educators and alumni it may be said that Vanderbilt does not shine alone. Georgia Tech maintains a firm stand on this and so does Auburn. The writer does not intend to say that this completes the list. It seems not to be doubted that in the not distant future the present enrollment of the southern conference will be reduced. A membership of more than 20 is regarded as unwieldy and "too centralized" is regarded as necessary for the complete fulfillment of the purposes of the organization.

ON STRAIGHT LINES

PARIS, Dec. 3.—"Tell me what they are wearing?" exclaimed the new American arrival today. "Straight lines," was the answer, "perhaps a flared hem or a border of shaded feathers, but the straight silhouette always. After that let your letter of credit be your guide."

EXPERT SAYS OLD CAN BE YOUNGER

Famous French Specialist Tells Paris He Has Made Mare Horse

PARIS, Dec. 3.—"If youth will, old age can," said the famous Dr. Jaworski, exposing his theory of rejuvenation before a large Paris audience.

Growing old will become a pleasure if one can carry out his ideas. Dr. Jaworski's idea is not so much a question of making a young body out of an old one as it is to keep the body young from the beginning. He does not favor the monkey theory.

"Men," he said, "are much more capable of rendering service to each other than the little animal brought into much prominence by the famous Voronoff."

Mare Into Horse

"By blood transfusion he promises youth and vigor to the octogenarian and in the name of 'blood marriage' carried to the highest degree of the institution, Dr. asks the question of the country to offer their blood—oh, only a few drops, of course.

"I have transformed a mare into a horse and a nanny-goat into a kid. Blood transfusion did it."

Park Board Asks Tree Planting Jurisdiction

Park board this morning voted to ask that the City Council pass an ordinance placing control of tree planting in city parkways within the jurisdiction of the board. This action followed a conference with Virgil B. Stone, city manager, in his office at the City Hall. L. H. Wilson, chairman, presided. It was decided to request that the council transfer sufficient funds from the park budget to build a fence around the tennis courts at Patterson avenue park. Sam Warren, superintendent of parks, and R. Ernest Tucker, superintendent of recreation, were present at the meeting.

Baby airplanes were a feature of a recent air meet in France.

Washer Wilson Invites All to Inspect Store

Every year train loads of raw materials, thousands of feet of angle iron and steel shafting, thousands of gears, millions of bolts and screws, thousands of gallons of paint, are required to keep the 20-acre plant of Altor Bros. Co., manufacturers of A. B. C. washing machines, in operation. The plant represents an investment of over $2,500,000, according to Washer Wilson, local dealer, 205 East Broadway.

Mr. Wilson invites everyone in Glendale to see his exhibit of washers, Grand Electric home ironer, a labor saving device especially useful in large families, and Sweeper Vac cleaners, which requires no adjustment for thick or thin carpets. The A. B. C. oscillator, model 80, has all the refinements of a higher priced machine at an exceptionally low cost; has aluminum wringer with 12-inch rolls of extra cushioned rubber and cabinet covering all moving parts. Over 400,000 of these washers are now in use, says Mr. Wilson, and he asks that a comparison be made with higher priced machines. Small down payment and easy weekly terms places a machine in the home.

L.A. Man Arrested Here On Bad Check Charges

William Garrison of Los Angeles, arrested in the city yesterday through efforts of the detective bureau of the Glendale police department, on a forged charge, was arraigned this morning before Judge Frank H. Lowe of the Glendale police court and his preliminary hearing set for 2 o'clock next Monday afternoon. His bail was fixed at $1000 and on failure to raise this sum he was sent to the Los Angeles county jail.

Garrison is alleged to have been a party with Albert Lewis, also of Los Angeles, to passing a fictitious check for $18.40 on the Glendale Groceries, last Saturday afternoon. The check was of the First National bank of Pasadena, made payable to Paul E. Stone and signed James R. Palmer. Investigation by the Glendale police failed to locate either Stone or Palmer, and the bank reported that the check was bad, according to Chief John D. Fraser of the department.

SCHOOL GIRL, 12, WRITES OF MOON

Glendale Intermediate Pupil
Student of Astronomy
To Be Scientist

Ruby Fisher, 12-year-old pupil at Glendale Intermediate school, is interested in astronomy and her ambition is to become a scientist. In her study she has gathered facts about the moon, which she sets forth in the following sketch "Glimpses of the Moon," written for one of her classes:

"Most of us do not pay the proper attention to the heavens. As we walk along we gaze constantly at the earth. Therefore, since this is Education Week, I will attempt to increase your knowledge of the earth's satellite, the moon, that orb which makes our nights so beautiful and which plays so important a part in all fairy legends.

"Many ages ago, the moon was a part of the earth. But while the earth was still a raging tumult of flame, a portion of it was flung off into space and that is the present moon.

Nearest to Earth

"Being the nearest planet to the earth, the moon has been carefully watched since the time of the earliest astronomers. Long ago people used to regard the moon's rays poisonous to sleepers. People who walk out on a moonlit night were regarded as lunatics. The moon owes all these slanders to its nearness to us.

"In size the moon is about one-fourth the diameter of the earth and its volume is but one-fiftieth that of our planet. Its day is equal to two weeks of our day-light.

"The moon has no atmosphere, no rainfalls on her barren surface, no clouds move above her. The moon is the kingdom of eternal peace and calm. If any blow disturbs the lunar surface it is from the fall of meteors rained upon it in space.

Moon Skyline

"The moon also has no skies. Our sky or lovely blue is caused by hundreds of miles of air. If one were to look up from the moon, it would be as if you were to look into a bottomless abyss. You would not see the glorious sun by day or the twinkling stars by night. Why?

"The moon, although it gives our night such a pleasant hue, shines not with its own light, but by the reflected light of the sun. I hope you will observe this information I have told you and think how this sweet, silvery planet of the skies fell a prey to fire in her old age."

POCKET IN FAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—The big ostrich fan is more than a fan just now. Within its folds is hidden a flat silk pocket, containing a flat powder puff and the thinnest of ivory cigarette cases.

Again, farmers of the West depend on irrigation from rivers and wells; rivers and wells depend on forested areas to conserve their flow, and forests depend on the action of men of today in saving the timber from ruthless destruction by fire and other means.

No two greater questions confront this western empire; others have failed to do those things which the United States Chamber of Commerce considers essential achievements; and if the general public only saw the light shed on the situation by economists it would add every ounce of support to programs of reforestation and agricultural advancement.

COMMENT by GIL A. COWAN

Within the last twenty-four hours the metropolitan newspapers have become apprised of the fact that a gale swept the mid-Atlantic last Saturday. When the Leviathan limped into port yesterday the New York controlled news services awoke to the fact that Father Neptune was playing capers with shipping.

The Glendale Evening News last Saturday gave International News Service accounts of a gale sweeping the Atlantic and sinking several ships. This paper went so far as to headline the meager dispatches, which only indicated the ferocity of the storm.

Perhaps other newspapers, in a week or so, will discover that Tom Lawson, phantom enemy of Wall Street, is dying at Bar Harbor, Maine. That, too, was told in last Saturday's edition of The Glendale Evening News. It was an exclusive copyrighted story by Consolidated Press association.

Incidentally, you will recall that the Chaplin marriage at Empalme, Mexico, was reported exclusively by International News Service in detail. Others had to accept the International News Service facts and send out stories from Los Angeles, stating "it is reported here" that Chaplin was married, etc.

The point of this comment is to convince readers of The Glendale Evening News that International News Service, Consolidated Press association, and other agencies serving you with TODAY'S NEWS TODAY, are FIRST with the LATEST.

Walking is a healthy exercise, you bet! The writer of this column climbed all over the mountain side, it seemed, of Ventura county's coast line yesterday afternoon. Believe me, it was hot! Yet it was vital that this be done in order to get the LATEST NEWS of highway construction for you.

The scenery, the expanse of ocean, the virgin country visited, were well worth the effort, in addition to the actual results obtained. There is only one way to really KNOW your own country. That's to get out and see it firsthand.

The action of the western division of the United States Chamber of Commerce in session in Los Angeles in discussing reforestation and farm needs shows that the real welfare of the country represented is evinced by this group of business leaders.

California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Utah and some sections of Arizona need more farmers, better farm conditions; their farms need water, markets, transportation sufficient to make agriculture a paying industry; commercial life of the West depends on the producer, principally the farmer, although we do have oil, minerals, motion pictures, manufacturing and commercial fisheries as lesser lines of endeavor in their respective order.

Again, farmers of the West depend on irrigation from rivers and wells; rivers and wells depend on forested areas to conserve their flow, and forests depend on the action of men of today in saving the timber from ruthless destruction by fire and other means.

No two greater questions confront this western empire; others have failed to do those things which the United States Chamber of Commerce considers essential achievements; and if the general public only saw the light shed on the situation by economists it would add every ounce of support to programs of reforestation and agricultural advancement.

Cleveland Plans Big 1925 Paving Program

CLEVELAND, Dec. 3.—This city plans to pave 250 streets at a cost of $6,500,000 in 1925. The 1924 program involved forty-eight miles of paving costing $4,300,000. Authorities say the cost which had been cut 50 cents a yard by close bidding would be still further reduced next year. This means steady employment for a large number of men.

TWO NEW COLORS

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Two new colors mark the latest winter topcoats, all of which are heavily trimmed with fur. One color is the delectable bottle green, the other a pale chestnut.

PLAYERS' COMEDY GIVES CHUCKLES

'Mamma's Affair' Serves as Ideal Vehicle for Stock Company

"Mamma's Affair" which the Dobinson Players are presenting at the Club Playhouse this week, is a satirical comedy with clever lines and keeps the audience chuckling. Joseph McManus as Dr. Jansen gives a corking portrayal of a young, straight-from-the-shoulder doctor, whose honest opinion is freely given.

Gertrude Kellar as Mrs. Orrin, always hoping for a rise in her temperature and the loss of a pulse beat, is also a characterization well done. Mary Isabelle Alpaugh as Eve Orrin, whose only thought is for her mother's health, does the best work of her career with the Dobinson Players.

Stevens in New Role

William H. Stephens, who has played many leading roles with the players, is cast in a far different character than those in which he has been seen, and in the role of Henry Marchant, Eve's affianced husband, shows his ability to put over a character. Laura Winston as Mrs. Hardy, housekeeper to Dr. Jansen, does one of the best bits in the show, and her spontaneous manner is a delight, especially in her scenes with the doctor. Thyra Ruhland also excels in the role of Mrs. Marchant, which is a difficult character, and could easily be overdone. Richard Ehlers as Tommy Hooper, the bellboy, is equally good and the production under the direction of George C. Pearce is well worth seeing.

The musical program is also enjoyable and adds to the evening's pleasure.

PYTHIANS ELECT YEAR'S OFFICERS

S. E. Wight Named Leader
For Another Term at Annual Meeting

Officers of Glendale lodge, Knights of Pythias, elected officers for the coming year at the annual meeting held last night. S. E. Wight was re-elected chancellor commander of the lodge; Hal E. Leedom, vice-chancellor; W. C. Maguire, prelate; George H. King, master of work; Cal S. Nicholson, master of finance; Claude Beiger, master of exchequer; J. E. Greenup, master of arms; R. E. Frey, keeper of records and seals; Ralph Douney, inner guard; Robert Taylor, outer guard; and E. E. DeArminid, trustee.

Judge Carlos Hardy of the Los Angeles superior court, was the guest of the Pythians at the meeting. He delivered a short address. Ed. Hawkins, state superintendent of Pythian insurance, also spoke. A musical program was rendered by the Van Nuys Pythian orchestra.

College Women's Club To Hear State Officer

Glendale's College Women's club will be represented Saturday at the gathering of Southern California college and university alumnae at the Catholic women's clubhouse, 927 Menlo avenue, Los Angeles, to hear an address by Mrs. William P. Lucas of San Francisco, state chairman of international relations for the American Association of University Women. Mrs. Frank W. Parr, president of the Glendale club, stated today that Mrs. Lucas will speak at 11 o'clock and that all members of the Glendale club are invited. Membership cards in the local club will be honored. Following the address will be luncheon at the University Women's clubhouse. Reservations for the luncheon must be made with Mrs. Parr by Friday morning.

Washington Wheat Is Held For High Price

SEATTLE, Dec. 3.—Two dollars a bushel for fancy milling wheat was forecast here when the price advanced to $1.98, a jump of 18 cents in the last month. Millers refuse to pay more than $1.80 and are substituting Montana hard wheat for highest grade Washington. Not since war time have prices been so high in this section.

LONG SATIN TUNIC

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—A long satin tunic is among the more recent indispensables of a girl's wardrobe. These tunics are quaintly slim and straight, with a little flare of ruffles well below the hip line. They are worn over costume slips.

'Trade In Glendale' Is C.C. Campaign Slogan sponsoring the movement in earnest.

On motion of Director MacBain, it was ordered that the secretary draw up a resolution declaring the board in favor of 100 per cent patronage of Glendale firms by the Glendale public. In accordance with this motion, it was announced that a standing merchants' committee of the chamber, to have charge of an active "trade in Glendale" campaign, will be one of the main sub-bodies of the chamber during the coming year. All committees will be appointed shortly.

City Manager Virgil B. Stone addressed the board and pledged the support of the city to the new directors. In response to the remarks of Mr. Stone, President Smith proffered the support and co-operation of the directorate of the Chamber of Commerce to the city administration. A spirit of healthy co-operation between the chamber and the city was urged by Vice-President Karr, who declared that had a better understanding between the board and the city prevailed on several past occasions, many difficulties could have been avoided.

Restricting Business

A committee to co-operate with the city manager and the City Council in the matter of restricting small scattered business districts throughout the city, as far as possible, as a means of aiding the larger and more useful downtown merchants; the stricter enforcement of the peddling ordinance, and the restriction of beggars, were appointed. It will consist of Directors Ingelude, Landers and Kelly. In this connection City Manager Stone gave a brief report on the recent activities of the City Council in these regards.

Other matters acted upon by the board at its initial meeting last night were the acceptance of G. A. Campbell, the Glendale Glass & Glazing Co. and the Morse Construction Co. to membership in the chamber; decision to have a special board committee on the financing of the Glendale float to be entered in the New Year's day parade at Pasadena; endorsement of the Dobinson Players by the board as a high-class and clean entertainment, worthy of the patronage of the Glendale public, and appointment of Directors Tait and Campbell to represent the chamber at the industrial conference of the California Real Estate association at Santa Ana, Saturday, December 6. Secretary Wood will also attend this meeting.

International Meeting

Retiring president W. E. Hewitt reported to the board on the meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce, held in Los Angeles yesterday at noon when Henry G. Robinson, member of the Dawes commission, gave an address. Six members of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce attended the meeting. A request to assist the Glendale Music club in advertising their coming production, "The Messiah," was referred to the advertising committee. Announcement that the Greater Los Angeles association, of "Keep the White Spot White" fame, has been incorporated and is ready to function, was made by Secretary Wood, who suggested that a committee be appointed to see that Glendale receives proper representation in the association. Percy J. Hayselden read the program of events at the mid-year conference of the western division of the United States Chamber of Commerce, now in progress at Los Angeles, and urged the directors to attend.

George F. Orgibet, chairman of the Greater Glendale Luncheon club of the Chamber of Commerce, invited each of the directors to attend the meeting Thursday at noon and give a two-minute talk on his prophetic conception of Glendale. An announcement that the radio program over KFI, the first of a series to be given by the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, will take place between the hours of 8 and 9 o'clock, Tuesday, December 9, instead of from 9 until 10 o'clock, was made. Gould H. Warren, R. Ernest Tucker and J. Arthur Myers compose the radio committee in charge of the affair. President Smith will appoint a new member to the luncheon committee following the resignation of Milford Coy, who has been unable to serve.

PARTY GIVEN FOR G. A. R. CHAPLAIN

Rev. C. R. Norton Guest of
J. O. C. Class of Church
On His Birthday

Rev. C. R. Norton, chaplain of N. P. Banks post, G. A. R., was honored at the meeting of the J. O. C. class of the First Methodist church held last night at the church, the occasion being his birthday. Mrs. A. E. Mack, president of the class, directed the business meeting when the report was made that $450 had been received in the recent every-member canvass, which was held this year instead of a bazaar. The class voted to pay the remaining $200 on the church building fund and a portion of the money will be used for the David and Margaret Home at La Verne. Two children at the Home are given clothing and their tuition at the school paid each year by the J. O. C. class.

Community singing was led by Mrs. W. A. Saylor, who also acted as accompanist. Games had been arranged and were directed by Miss Zella Keim. After the business meeting and program, the company adjourned to the banquet hall. The tables were artistically decorated to carry out a color scheme of red and white, red crepe paper and ferns being arranged on the tables. Red candles had been placed on the tables and lighted, shedding a soft light over the room.

Birthday Cake

A large white birthday cake with 79 red candles was placed at Rev. Norton's place and individual white cakes with one red candle were found at each place. Red baskets with candies and brick ice cream were other refreshments.

Arthur Lindley, member of the official board of the church, gave greetings to Rev. Norton from the official board and also presented him with a pearl-handled umbrella as a gift from the board. Greetings from Dr. Lincoln A. Ferris, pastor of the church, who was unable to be present, were sent to Rev. Norton.

Hostesses arranging the affair were Miss Mamie Haines, Mesdames W. Haines, Arthur Haines, Bachtell, Diefenbach, Davis, Groug, Hallam, Hanning and Foulks. The next meeting of the class will be held January 6.
